DIRECTIONS FOR USE

When to use each list

Alphabetical List. Use to find the fullest information about books, since the descriptive notes for the books are given under the author entries in this section.

Use as a reference tool because it includes in one alphabet author, title, and subject entries for all books included, and also analytical entries under subjects for parts of books.

Classified List. Use as a guide in the selection of books for buying. For this purpose the Classified List is arranged by class numbers. Necessary information about publisher and price, which is given in the Alphabetical List, is repeated in this section.

Use also as a cataloging tool, since the subject headings for each book are indicated in this section. The list of analytics made for each book is given here as an aid in reference work and in cataloging.

List by Grades. Use this list (to be found after the Classified List) when called upon to select books for the different grades.

Out of Print List. Use to check collection for books still worth retaining if library has them. This list follows the List by Grades.

Director of Publishers. This comes at the end of the book and gives the full address of each publisher.

How to use the Alphabetical List

The Alphabetical List is in dictionary form with author, title and subject entries in one alphabet.

Look under the author entry for the fullest information, including descriptive notes, publisher, price, grade, class number. The class number is given at the right in black type. To find other books in this class, turn to this number in the Classified List.

Look under the subject for all books on a subject. This will often give a fuller list of books on a subject than is to be found under any one number in the Classified List, since there are sometimes reasons for not classifying all of these books together. Also look under the subject for material to supplement books on the subject, since there are many analytical subject entries for parts of books.

Title entries for books, for individual plays, for individual short stories and for plays in collections are also included.

How to use the Classified List

The Classified List is in class order according to the Dewey Decimal Classification. An outline of the Classification will be found preceding the Classified List.

Class numbers are carried at the top outside corner of each page; page numbers at the bottom of each page.

To find descriptive notes about the books, turn to the author entries in the Alphabetical List. Notes about other titles and other editions are repeated in the Classified List.

Subject headings used for a book are to be found in a line below the entry for the book, numbered and arranged in alphabetical order, followed by the number of analytics.

PREFACE

This seventh edition of the Children's Catalog, a revision of the sixth edition (1941), includes about 4200 titles. In addition 230 other titles are included in notes with publisher and price of each title. An innovation in this edition is the inclusion of 133 selected pamphlets. Many of the books are published in more than one edition; and a number of recommended editions are mentioned in notes with publisher and price in each case.

Form of the Catalog. The general form of the Catalog remains the same. The Alphabetical List (Part 1) is a dictionary catalog, with author, title and subject entries in one alphabet. The class numbers, according to the Dewey Decimal Classification, have been added to all entries for all books. Full bibliographic information is given under the author entry, as well as descriptive notes for all titles included. Most of the notes have been taken from library lists, bibliographies of children's books, and current book reviews, with the source indicated. The date of the edition which has been cataloged is used in the author entry but previous editions and information about revisions are given in the annotation which follows.

In the Classified List (Part 2) the books are arranged in class order according to the Dewey Decimal Classification. This section gives the publisher, date of publication and the price; also the subject headings and the analytics made for each book. The Classified List is meant to be used primarily as a buying list. It brings together all titles in convenient classed order. This arrangement is helpful in checking a library's collection. The annotations which are included under the author entries in the Alphabetical List are not repeated in this section.

Method of Selection. The selection is based on the votes of children's librarians and school librarians who carefully checked the sixth edition, the supplements from 1941 to 1945 and a list of several hundred new books, considering each title for inclusion or omission. A list of these collaborators, to whom we are greatly indebted, will be found following the Preface. The final selection made by the editors thus represents the composite opinion of a large and varied number of librarians in actual public library or school library work.

Some of the general policies of the Catalog are: School readers above the third grade are not included; Reference books are included but are not so indicated, except that they are not graded. A book which might be marked for reference work in one library might be circulated in another.

Revision. Several new features have been added in this edition. These additions were made at the suggestion of children's librarians and approved by the answers to a questionnaire sent to more than fifty librarians. These changes are: 1. Inclusion of a select list of pamphlets; 2. Listing in Part 2 of the analytic entries made for each book; 3. Separating the collections of short stories from other fiction and giving them a separate classification number (S C); 4. Listing of the titles dropped because they were reported out of print.

Titles in Notes. The 230 titles which have been mentioned in notes are meant to be further suggestions to libraries needing additional material of the same kind. They are mainly titles which do not have as high a recommendation as those listed fully, but will be found useful in many libraries.

The noted books are included in the Classified List as well as in the Alphabetical List.

Pamphlets. For the first time pamphlets are listed in a manner similar to the method of listing in the Standard Catalog for High School Libraries. These pamphlets are listed in full under author entries in Part 1, with references under subjects; in Part 2 they are listed at the ends of classes. Only 133 pamphlets are listed, mainly those of well known series, e.g. Basic science education series, Pictured geographies, etc.

Analytical Entries for Parts of Books. The analyzing of books is a feature considered most valuable by children's and school librarians. In this edition 8200 analytical entries have been made for 637 books. Plays, both individual plays and plays in collections, have been carefully indexed with author, title and subject entries for each play. Short stories have also been analyzed. Collections of fairy tales, myths and legends have not been analyzed because they have been indexed in Eastman's "Index to Fairy Tales" (1926), its Supplement (1937) or are apt to be included in future supplements. The note "Analyzed in Eastman" has been added to the author entries of collections already indexed.

A new feature in this edition is listing, in Part 2 of the Catalog, the analytical entries made for each book. It is hoped that this listing will be helpful in reference work and in cataloging.

Story Collections. 44 collections of short stories both those by one author and those by several authors have been separated from other titles of fiction, given the class number "S C," and filed immediately following Fiction. Collections of fairy tales have been kept in Fiction or in 398. A mixed collection of fairy tales and short stories usually has been left in Fiction. Most of the collections classified "S C" have been analyzed by author, title and subject.

Out of Print Books. In this edition more titles than formerly were reported out of print. Those which received high votes were retained in the main body of the Catalog and are marked "o.p. 1946." Those which did not receive such high votes were omitted from the Catalog. A list of such omitted titles is given at the end of the Catalog. Because many titles marked "o.p. 1946" in the main catalog or in the Out-of-Print List may be reprinted as soon as publishers can do so, librarians should check with publishers when ordering.

Books for First Purchase. Approximately 1100 books are starred for first purchase in this edition. Of these 500 are marked with two stars. They are, on the whole, the books of lasting merit which ought to be made available to all children. The titles marked with a single star, about 600 in all, are books which have been found to be most generally useful in libraries and which have a wide appeal to children. These titles alone will naturally not meet the needs of any one library but an attempt has been made to indicate the most generally useful books in each class. Out of print books have not been starred but most of those which have been retained in the Catalog received high enough votes to have been starred if they had been available in trade editions. Librarians of small libraries who purchase the starred books and second-hand copies of out of print books will have the beginning of a basic collection.

Grading. Approximate grading is given for each title except books meant for the librarian or teacher, books useful for reference work, and books of such wide appeal that they could be used with any grade. Everyone recognizes that all such grading is unsatisfactory and sometimes misleading but all agree that some indication as to the relative difficulty of the book is desirable. Grading must never be taken too seriously however.

A list of books arranged by school grade is to be found following the Classified List.

Classification and Cataloging. The books are classified according to the latest edition of the Dewey Decimal Classification, with the exception of "Fic" for Fiction; "S C" for Story Collections; and "E" for both easy books and picture books graded 1 to 3.

All the books have been cataloged for this edition to conform in classification and subject headings with those used in other volumes of the Standard Catalog Series, in Sears' "List of Subject Headings for Small Libraries," and on the printed Wilson Catalog Cards. This has resulted in a closer classification and in more formal subject headings than is needed in many small libraries.

The subhead Fiction has been used with all subjects except for books about animals and birds which are listed as Animals—Stories, Dogs—Stories, etc. and for stories suitable for various holidays, as Christmas—Stories.

When Wilson Catalog Cards are available, the symbol (W) follows the main entry in the Classified List. Wilson cards have been made for all books included which were published in 1938 or later. Cards have not been made for pamphlet material nor for slightly revised editions; nor for encyclopedias and annuals begun before 1938.

Prices. Editions. Publication Date. Care has been given to the question of prices and editions, and every effort has been made to insure accuracy on this point. In order to have all information as accurate and as up to date as possible, data about prices, editions and out of print books has been secured in most cases by correspondence with the publishers. The date of publication, usually the latest copyright date, is given in almost all cases. As these prices were obtained early in 1946, care should be taken to verify when ordering.

Uses. The Catalog is meant to serve: 1. as a Catalog and reference tool, valuable because of the analysis of many books and because of the descriptive notes about the books; 2. as a buying list, showing the books recommended by experienced librarians for public and school library collections; 3. as a cataloging tool, since the books are classified and the subject headings indicated in the Classified List.

Acknowledgments. Thanks are due the publishers who so carefully checked our list of their publications for prices and editions and who have generously given us copies of books included in the Catalog. These books are kept in our permanent collection where they will be of use both now and in the future when new editions of the Children's Catalog are prepared.

The responsibility for the compilation of the seventh edition of the Children's Catalog is a joint responsibility. The final selection of titles, revision of the annotations and grading have been done by Ruth Giles; the cataloging, classification and preparation of the copy were done under the supervision of Dorothy E. Cook and Dorothy H. West.

The editors extend sincere thanks for efficient assistance to members of the Standard Catalog staff, especially Loretta Devine and Ethel Rafferty.

In this 1940 edition, a section has been added in which improvements and discoveries since 1933 are briefly described

A history of civilization for younger children, attempting to show the contribution of the past to modern living. There is a brief survey of the early civilizations of the Mediterranean, of China and India, Europe in the Middle ages, and the Mayan and Aztec civilization in America. This is followed by sections on Beliefs of mankind, Language and records, Science, Government, and Fine arts. Text book for-

"In the early half of the eighteenth century, when Selinda Reinhardt was a little girl, her family with many others migrated from Germany to America. This story tells of the preparation for the journey, the months of travel by land and water, and of the final home-making in Pennsylvania. Historical and personal events described as from a child's point of view, form a varied background for this interesting chronicle. Will be most enjoyed by children of eleven and over."

"To give a clear individual record in verse or prose of the ways of little children is a rare achievement. Dorothy Aldis has done precisely that in verses which are quite her own. They seem to have sprung up spontaneously out of a happy American childhood and an intimate, informed and sustained relationship with real children living anywhere. . . Helen Jameson's drawings, in delightful harmony with the text, are not overdone and are a constant reminder that the book belongs primarily to the very little children." A. C.

Dougal's wish; with pictures by Marc Simont. Harper 1942 244p illus o.p. 1946 (4-6) Fic

Dougal and his sister Margit each made a wish according to the instructions in an old book of Scottish legends. Dougal's wish had been for something exciting to happen on their Pennsylvania farm. The next night a strange pony appeared in the pasture. But only when the pony changed to a little Scottish man before the children's eyes, did Alan admit they had a real live kelpie on their hands

- * Great tradition; with illus. by C. Le R. Baldridge. Houghton 1937 205p illus $2 (8-9) Fic
 "A girl's life at college is treated from a new angle in this unusual story of a capable country girl at the University of Chicago. It is concerned not only with Merritt Lane's scholastic work and ambitions as a biology student but with the personal relationships, problems, fun and feuds of the small group of girl students with whom she shares a cooperatively managed apartment. In its recognition of and emphasis on the various attitudes and values, human, social and scholarly, it presents a realistic and well-rounded picture of university life." N.Y. public lib.

- 5 House of her own; with illus. by Manning de V. Lee. Houghton 1934 220p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

About the younger sister of "Judith Lankester," but an independent story. Followed by "Off to Philadelphia!"
 "Indiana during the 40's is the scene of this story about staunch Catherine, who proved that she could handle a school which had hitherto been taught by men. She not only succeeds in her school but acquires a home for herself. Kit, her oldest pupil, adds special interest to her school and life. For girls of Junior High age and older." Wis. bul.

- Jane's island; with illus. by Maitland De Gogorza. Houghton 1931 235p illus $2 (6-9) Fic

"A modern story, full of adventure, in which Ellen, a college freshman, spends the summer on Cape Cod with twelve-year-old Jane, whose father is experimenting in a marine laboratory. His work brings into the story a scientific interest unusual in a book for girls." Cleveland "Well-written, interesting book for girls. . . The best part of the book is its fine outdoor atmosphere, which is heightened by Maitland De Gogorza's thoroughly delightful woodcuts." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

- * Judith Lankester; with illus. by H. L. Price. Houghton 1930 241p illus $2 (6-9) Fic

"From a wealthy slave-owning home in Virginia, Judith goes to live in a pioneer Quaker settlement in Indiana. Her pride, ignorance of household work, and dislike of the new surroundings lead to much unhappiness before she is able to adjust herself to the changed conditions. Possessed of really fine qualities, however, she finally conquers her difficulties and wins the approval and affection of those with whom her lot is cast. The time is about 1840." Pittsburgh Followed by "House of her own"

- Off to Philadelphia! With illus. by David Hendrickson. Houghton 1936 214p illus $2 (6-9) Fic

Follows "House of her own"

"The third story in the series about the Lankester girls, of which 'Judith Lankester,' and 'House of her own' were the first two. Phebe Lankester and her young sister, Martha, travel from their Indiana home to visit their Quaker cousins in Philadelphia. Phebe's stay is made happier when she learns that Martin is in Philadelphia trying to earn money by painting pictures." Book rev. digest
 "A story closely packed with details of the period [about 1840]." Horn book

- Runaway Linda; illus. by David Hendrickson. Houghton 1939 220p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

A story of Quakers and "of the era when farm machinery was first being introduced. Fifteen-year-old Linda and her young brother Joel were befriended by kindly William Saint who offered them a temporary sanctuary on his Indiana farm." Bkl.

"Girls will approve this story from an 1875 setting, with its uncomplicated drama and direct appeal to the sympathies. . . Gives an excellent picture of the era, through Billy Saint's interest in engines and his sisters' tastes in clothes and furniture." Library Journal

- 5 Smoke jumper; illus. by M. de V. Lee. Houghton 1945 160p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"Bill, newly graduated from High School, takes a summer job of 'smoke jumping,' a . . . new phase of the Forest Service." Kirkus

"Fire fighting is always exciting reading, and Mrs. Allee has made an especially gripping story from this new aspect of it." Horn book

- * Susanna and Tristram; with illus. by H. L. Price. Houghton 1929 220p illus $2 (6-9) Fic

"A brave sixteen-year-old Quaker girl gets into many difficulties in her attempts to help out an elderly relative known as the president of the Underground railway. With a courage and a determination far beyond her years she sticks to her job and succeeds in a daring rescue which even her elders could not manage." Book rev. digest

"Marjorie Hill Allee has made a fine, vigorous story of Susanna and Tristram, a story written about a period and an

"In 'The guns of Bull Run' the civil war and its beginnings are seen through the eyes of Harry Kenton, who is on the southern side. In 'The guns of Shiloh' the mighty struggle takes its color from the view of Dick Mason, who fights for the North and who is with Grant in his first great campaign." Foreword

The following volumes continue the story of Dick Mason, showing the point of view of the North:

- Altsheler, J. A. Rock of Chickamauga; a story of the western crisis; illus. by Charles Wrenn. Appleton-Century 1915 328p illus (Civil war ser. v6) $2

Analyzed in Eastman

The first of Andersen's stories appeared in Denmark in 1835. They continued to come out in installments until 1872. The first translation into English was made by Mary Howitt in 1846 with the title "Wonderful stories for children"

This and "Stories and tales" comprise the author's edition of Andersen's stories, and contain practically all of his fairy tales. They are indispensable to the story teller and to the adult reader but other editions are more attractive to children. Most of the illustrations in these two books were made about 1850 by a Dane, Lieutenant Pedersen, who was chosen to do this work by Andersen himself

This volume contains 60 stories

It is difficult to know how to separate the material on animals. In this catalog an attempt has been made to keep straight factual material under Animals, true observation of animal habits under Animals—Habits and behavior, and fiction and fairy tales under Animals—Stories. An accurate separation is, however, almost impossible. Some of the material classified in 591.5 is to be found under Animals—Stories

"Na Nai, a little Navaho Indian boy, thru the teaching of his uncle, the medicine man, learns the meaning of the Nava-ho songs, the sand paintings, and much of the tribal lore. When he is eight years old American troops under the command of Kit Carson invade the Canyon de Chelly where Na Nai lives, and his tribe is sent for four years to New Mexico. At the end of that time the exiles are returned to their home in northern Arizona, and Na Nai settles down happily to learn his uncle's 'medicine' so that when the old medicine man dies, his nephew can take his place." Book rev. digest

In this book, which grew out of Mrs Armer's long visit to old Mexico, the author-artist has told a story of two little Mexican boys, Diego and Popo. They seek the ancient tree-lizard, called the iguana, that lives in a pool deep in the green forest. The illustrations are pictures of native life, of flora and fauna, the marginal sketches are of aboriginal art

Awarded the Newbery medal, 1932

"An unusual story of Navaho Indian life as seen through the eyes of Younger Brother, who learns the songs of the medicine men and makes new songs for himself. The customs and tribal beliefs are skillfully woven into the narrative.
The author is noted for her copies of sand paintings and the illustrations have the atmosphere and spirit of the story."

"The decorative drawings Miss Klemm has made for the translation into English of Sholom Asch's Bible stories for children express true feeling for the subject and a regard for their association with the carefully chosen type. This is a very well-made book of unusual interest. The retelling of the stories of Genesis from the creation of the world to the death of Jacob is characteristic of the author's deep feeling for human beings in their relation to God and man, a relation in which the sense of humor is not denied." Animals everywhere. . . Doubleday 1940 unp illus o.p. 2046 (1-2) E

"A first picture book which unfolds into a panorama and introduces little children to animals from the tropics to the arctic zone. The animals pictured in their native settings are lithographed in four colors on one side of the panorama. On the other side the same animals appear in one color with their backs turned and tell in simple text the sounds they make. Would make a delightful decoration for a child's room." N.Y. public lib.

"Representative selections illustrating the qualities which made each poet great are introduced into the narrative." Pittsburg

"A book that attempts to do for poetry, though in a different way, what other well-known volumes have done for history and philosophy. The authors say that it is a book for all readers who are curious about poetry, children and adults included. Cast in narrative form, 'The winged horse' begins with a chapter entitled 'When poetry was necessary' and swings down through Greek, Roman, mediaeval, English and American poetry to some final speculations on the future, which are entitled 'Pegasus in to-morrow.'" Cat club; or, The life and times of Jenny Linsky, written and illus. by Esther Averill. Harper 1944 31p illus $1.50 (1-3) E

Jenny Linsky is a shy black cat who wears a red scarf and lives in Greenwich Village. Neighboring cats had parties every night on Captain Tinker's back fence, and tho Jenny watched them from a distance she was so very shy she never had the courage to join them. When Captain Tinker buys her a pair of skates, she learns to use them, and is elected to the Cat club "This story of cats in Greenwich Village has originality and a quiet wit." N.Y. public lib.

Daniel Boone; illus. by Feodor Rojankovsky. Harper 1945 56p illus $1.50 (3-6) 92

B The life of Daniel Boone for younger readers, dramatizing his adventures as a hunter and scout, his capture and adoption by the Cherokee Indians, and his escape from them to warn Boonesborough of the attack planned by the Indians

Based upon the internationally known picture book, "Daniel Boone," illustrated with brilliant lithographs by Fedor Rojankovsky and published by the Domino Press in French in 1931. It was issued as an English edition the same year, edited by Esther Averill and Lila Stanley. In the present edition, the Rojankovsky illustrations have been retained, but Esther Averill has rewritten and enlarged the text. The present volume is smaller in size, is more securely bound, and more practical for library use than the original edition. Arrangement of illustrations within the text not as artistic as in the previous edition

"A wholly delightful book of history for children from eight to twelve or thirteen years old. The stories of seventeen real children who learned to work with their hands, and in most cases became famous in their individual crafts, include those of Lora Standish, who made the first sampler; Paul Revere, the silversmith; Duncan Phyfe, the joiner; Betsy Metcalf, who made the first straw hat in the New World; Thoreau, the pencil-maker; and Simeon Ide, the printer. Based on genealogical and town records, early letters and diaries, the book is well-written original

"Kensington gardens are in London where the king lives and here after Lock-out time the fairies have delightful balls within a fairy ring. . . There are . . . strange tales . . . of Peter Pan, who never grew up, and of the famous Maimie Mannerling for whom the fairies first built their wonderful little house for lost children." Pittsburgh

"It is a children's guide to Kensington Gardens after lock-out time, revealing all the hidden secrets of Peter Pan, and the fairy folk whose dwelling-place it is." Toronto

Presidents in American history. Messner 1941 157p illus $2 (7-8) 920

New edition in preparation, 1946

"Read from beginning to end, this book makes an excellent primer (for not younger than high-school age) of the political and economic history of the United States, but a primer in which even adults can find enlightenment. Clear, unbiased, illuminating summaries of the lives and administrations of each of our Presidents by an eminent historian. In his preface, Dr. Beard explodes the popular theory that the Republic and the quality of our leaders have been running downhill since the days of the Fathers." New Yorker

Igor's summer; a story of our Russian friends; illus. by Kurt Wiese. Russian war relief 1943 59p illus $1 (3-5) Fic

"How a Russian schoolboy spent his vacation in a brigade, working on the Timoshenko Farm. The experiences of eleven-year Igor and his friends, as they learned how to cultivate vegetables, are often lively . . . as well as informative. Before the summer was over they found that everyone can be a soldier, working on the crops, no less than on the battlefield." Horn book

Contents: For the arm of Parvati; Always look at your coachman's feet; Half a god, and all a hero; "This hound hath loved me"; Markanda; Wicked goldsmith; Abbot whose prayer was answered; About the Indian epics

"A collection of old Hindu legends including two longer tales from India's great epics, the 'Ramayana' and the 'Mahabharata.' Told with strength and beauty, these stories are full of the wisdom, superstition, magic, and humor of the East. The illustrations depicting men, gods, demons, and beasts have a strange, fantastic quality in keeping with the spirit of the text." Bkl.

A story of Yosemite valley in the 1840's. Two boys, one white and the other Indian, become fast friends, foraging, exploring, fighting and adventuring

"The feeling for nature is strong and well described; one feels the charm and the beauty of the Valley with its forests and rivers and waterfalls. The two boys are unconvincing and the motivation is weak, but the book will undoubtedly interest boys of eleven or twelve who like adventure stories." Library journal

Based on the "The age of fable" by Thomas Bulfinch. The tales of the Trojan war are considerably shortened, and the adventures of Aeneas left out altogether

"Sally Benson has made her selection with judgment and skill, omitting stories that are too complicated, following Bulfinch when he suits her purpose, re-writing when his style is formal or sentimental. . . Children will find this easier and more compelling reading than many other versions. Unusual line drawings complement the imaginative quality of the text." Horn book

Analyzed in Eastman

Contents: Master wizard, Pan Twardowski, and his spider, by G. Kedzierski; Good orphan Sunblossom and the enchanted treasure, by G. Kedzierski; Jas the fiddler, by G. Kedzierski; Wolf and the blacksmith, by G. Kedzierski; Dancing pike, by W. Perzynski; Mr Whirlwind, shoemaker, by W. Perzynski; Madej the brigand, by A. J. Glinski; Wizard's pupil, by A. J. Glinski; The jester who fooled a king, by Baracz; Lucky beggar, by A. Piotrowski; Pig's head magician

"This collection of Polish folk tales is made up of nine stories from traditional sources and two from the work of a modern author. Magic and humor, characteristics of the tales, are emphasized in the illustrations." Bkl.

"These tales are of magic and strange adventures and have the quality of crude fantasy which is often found in the genuine folk-tale." Horn book

Adventures of Peter and Lotta; a story told and illus. by Elsa Beskow. Harper 1931 31p illus o.p. 1946 (2-4) E

"This is the third and best of the three books which Elsa Beskow has written about Aunt Green, Aunt Brown and Aunt Lavender, Uncle Blue and the two children who lived with them. 'The Adventures of Peter and Lotta' has more to say about the children and less about the grown-ups and so makes a stronger appeal to boys and girls who find Peter's and Lotta's mild escapades and disasters entertaining and well within their range of interest." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Aunt Brown's birthday; a story told and illus. by Elsa Beskow; tr. from the Swedish by Siri Andrews. Harper 1930 23p illus o.p. 1946 (2-4) E

"Here are told further adventures of that delightful trio of old ladies who were first met in 'Aunt Brown, Aunt Green and Aunt Lavender.' In this book the children, Peter and Lotta, and Uncle Blue, their schoolmaster, have a very active part. A charming picture-storybook for children through the second and third grades. Unsubstantial binding." Bkl.

"Charming pictures tell the story of how Pelle earned his new suit. He is shown raking hay, bringing in wood, feeding pigs, going on errands and at the same time, each process in the making of the suit is followed, beginning with the shearing of the lamb. The coloring of the pictures (which show both Swedish peasant house interiors and out-of-door scenes) is quite lovely." N.Y. public lib.

Harvest of the Hudson, by Erick Berry (pseud.); illus. by the author. Macmillan 1945 239p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

Young Sebastian Yates, forced to leave the beloved farm run by himself and his young sister in a patroonship in Dutch New York, sets sail for the Indies in a small Hudson river boat. He encounters storms, pirates and wreckers but returns home in time for the harvest and an unexpected turn of good fortune

"Erick Berry has drawn her characters with skill in this vigorous historical story of two-fold interest." Horn book

Hearthstone in the wilderness, by Erick Berry (pseud.); illus. by the author. Macmillan 1944 242p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

The story starts in Glens Falls in the 1790's. There are two threads of story—one of the father and daughter who go west to take up the homestead on which he had gambled everything; the other of the son who reluctantly stays behind to earn the money for the final payment, by working for a miller

"This is one of the most satisfying stories of American pioneers that has been published in many a long day. It is satisfying not only in plot and action—there is never a dull moment in it—but in the people who move through its pages and in its attitude toward the things that matter in life—work, play, human relationships." Sat. rev. of lit.

Homespun, by Erick Berry (pseud.); illus. by Harold Von Schmidt. Lothrop 1937 308p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"In the early 19th century, while pretty Jerusha Greenman stays in her primitive western New York home and weaves her blue broadcloth wedding gown, one brother travels with his bride in a covered wagon to Santa Fé on a trading expedition, another traps in the Northwest, and the third enters the cotton business of his uncle in New Orleans. The author, holding the strands of these four lives, weaves them into a graphic colorful pattern of this pioneering period. Appealing and well-written, with specially keen perception of character." N.Y. public lib.

Honey of the Nile, by Erick Berry (pseud.); illus. by the author. Oxford 1938 224p illus $2 (8-9) Fic

A story based on the life of Ankhnesamenon, the girl queen, who fled from a hostile court and escaped on a raft laden with bee-hives down the Nile

"The author has consulted authorities for her historical background. The story is less filled with detail, more direct and covers a shorter period than 'The Lost Queen of Egypt' by Morrison, which is so satisfactory for readers of high school age. This book will appeal to a younger group." Library journal

Hudson frontier, by Erick Berry (pseud.); pictures by the author. Oxford 1942 239p illus $2.50 (7-9) Fic

"How two high school girls interested in marionettes use their hobby to earn money for a college nest egg. They give performances at schools and summer camps, thereby experiencing more than one adventure. Many interesting details relative to the making and manipulation of marionettes are woven into the story." Bkl.

There is the land, by Erick Berry (pseud.). Oxford 1943 240p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

A picture of farm life in New York state as experienced by a city boy and girl. They found the charms of country life as well as the hard work that it involves and helped to solve a mystery for which Cloris was commended by the President

Whistle round the bend, by Erick Berry (pseud.); pictures by the author. Oxford 1941 266p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

A story about American transportation written especially for young people. The plot hinges on two things—the coming of the railroad and the fate of the Mendi slaves. The background is New Haven in the early 1800's

"Rich in both incident and character." Library journal

Third in a trilogy of novels about transportation, following "Lock her through"

* Winged girl of Knossos, by Erick Berry (pseud.); illus. by the author. Appleton-Century 1933 253p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"A fine story of Inas, the daughter of Daidalos, who helped her father in his experiments with the first flying machines or gliders. Friend and confidant of the Princess Ariadne, she helped to arrange the escape of Theseus, imprisoned in the Labyrinth. She shared her father's exile in Sicily when driven out of Crete, but returns after the death of King Minos." Bookshelf

Contents: About pets in general; Mice; Rats; Dogs; Cats; Rabbits; Guinea pigs; Birds; The aquarium; Land-and-water pets

"Any child who is really fond of animals ought to have this book. It is so wise, so thorough and so very sympathetic in feeling. As for the photographs and line illustrations—they are all one could desire." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Apple tree

In Harper, W. comp. Easter chimes p70-83 (4-6) 394

Bright morning; drawings by Margaret Platt. Viking 1942 143p illus $1.50 (4-6) Fic

A "picture of life in a comfortable Victorian family who live in London. Chris and Emmie have a wonderful Nanny who takes them to the seashore, where they live in a boardinghouse, go bathing from old-fashioned machines and gather shells." Kirkus

"Against the charm of a Victorian household and the decor of a period this story of two little English girls in London is told with humor and lively incident, which give the book vitality and lasting interest." N.Y. public lib.

Forward, Commandos! Illus. by Rafaello Busoni. Viking 1944 184p illus $2 (4-7) Fic

"Four boys who like to play Commandos receive complaints from the neighborhood and, driven to the woods, they find reality in their makebelieve. A haunted house, a stranger, night scouting, Army friends, and a grass fire complete their experiences and their quick action controlling the fire brings them newspaper writeups as heroes." Kirkus

"This story of four boys in New Jersey, during one strenuous summer, is touched with the author's sure instinct for what is dramatic in ordinary experience, what is real in human relationships." N.Y. public lib.

Good friends; with lithographs by Grace Paull. Viking 1934 142p illus $1.75 (4-6) Fic

Also available to schools only, from Cadmus bks. for $1.12

"A gay story of some remarkable farm animals who hanker for such adornments as window curtains and other home comforts." Boston

Green grows the garden; illus. by Grace Paull. Macmillan 1936 177p illus $1.50 (6-8) 635

"Practical advice and inspiration for the young gardener, charmingly and humorously given." Cleveland

"In informal essay-like chapters she discusses the vegetable patch and the cottage garden, making a rock garden, growing herbs and house plants, and throughout she communicates the satisfaction to be derived from gardening." Bkl.

Hurdy-gurdy man; illus. by Robert Lawson. Oxford 1933 55p illus 75c (3-5) Fic

"A story of a prim little town where no one ever had any fun until the Hurdy-Gurdy man came with his monkey and played a rollicking tune. Then everything was changed. Everybody that listened from the mayor, the butcher and the baker down to the youngest child learned how to play and be happy." C. E. Scott in Library occurrence

* Little wooden doll; with pictures by Pamela Bianco. Macmillan 1925 65p illus (Little library) $1 (3-4) Fic

"An old-fashioned wooden doll has spent many days in the attic with only the mice and the spiders for company. But they are good friends and, with their aid, she becomes the treasure of a poor little girl. The drawings were done by the author's daughter when she was a little girl." Providence

Mrs M. W. Bianco's "Poor Cecco; illus. by Arthur Rackham" (Doubleday 1925 175p illus $3) is another story dealing with the adventures of a lively wooden doll and a wonderful wooden dog

Mr A and Mr P

More about animals; illus. by Helen Torrey. Macmillan 1934 115p illus $2 (5-7) 591.5

"Enjoyable stories of pet cats, dogs, rabbits, crows, skunks and hedgehogs, selected from the writer's experiences with animals in various parts of the world. In addition there are short chapters on spiders, a traveling horse, and moths and butterflies." N.Y. libraries

A companion volume to "All about pets"

Other people's houses. Viking 1939 201p $2, (7-9) Fic

"Dale Forrest, obliged to earn her own living, does the only thing she knows how and accepts a series of jobs as companion, governess, housekeeper, and helper in a tearoom; all of which bring her into contact with human nature and train her for building her own home which is in prospect at the end of the story." Hunting

Poor Cecco. See note under Bianco. Little wooden doll Fic

Skin horse; illus. by Pamela Bianco. Doubleday 1927 41p illus o.p. 1946 (4-6) Fic

"The tale of a skin horse which had been handed down from one child to another in a family until all were grown up, and then sent to a hospital to become the favorite of a very sick little child. The child's dearest wish is that the horse will one day take him on a journey round the world and in the end the animal does turn into a kind of angel-horse and bears the little patient away from his pain." Saturday rev.

A charming imaginative story which will appeal to the unusual child and to adults

* Velveteen rabbit; illus. by William Nicholson. Doubleday 1926 33p illus $1.25 (4-5) Fic

"Short story of a much loved toy animal who is changed by nursery magic into a live rabbit." Pittsburgh Delightful pictures

* Winterbound. Viking 1936 234p illus $2 (5-8) Fic

"A refreshing story of four young people from the city adjusting themselves to a winter in the Connecticut hills and accepting the responsibilities of homemaking in a courageous manner." Bkl.

Bible. Selections

* Animals of the Bible; a picture book by D. P. Lathrop; with text selected by H. D. Fish from the King James Bible. Lippincott 1937 65p illus $2.25 (1-4) 220

Awarded the Caldecott medal, 1938

"Dorothy Lathrop's love and understanding of animals, the sensitiveness and joy with which she draws them, make her the ideal artist for such a volume. It is more than a beautiful picture book, for she has studied the fauna and flora of Bible lands until each animal and bird, each flower and tree, is true to natural history." N.Y. Times

Bible story, by D. C. Hogner; illus. by Nils Hogner. Oxford 1943 438p illus $2.50 (5-9) 220

"The narrative portions of both Old and New Testaments are covered in this volume of Bible stories, which, with some condensation and rewriting where the text would be obscure, follows the wording of the King James version quite faithfully. Nils Hogner's illustrations are dramatic, in some cases perhaps too graphic. Otherwise, with its good print, the book is admirable in every respect." Wis. bul.

* Book of books; the King James version of the English Bible, abridged and arranged with editorial comments for younger readers, by W. O. Sypherd. Knopf 1944 448p illus maps $3 (7-9) 220

"Between the covers of this volume, will be found a substantial part of the writings of the Old Testament and the New Testament which every educated boy or girl should know. . . . The introductory comments are designed to make the selections understandable, interesting, and above all, significant as parts of a body of lasting world literature." Foreword

"A book of selections from the Old and New Testaments presented in these groupings: historical and biographical narrative, the short story, poetry, the essay, letters and other writings." Bkl.

"Beautiful in design and typography, well bound in blue cloth, a distinguished addition to the young people's shelf." Wis. bul.

Children's Bible; tr. and arranged by H. A. Sherman and C. F. Kent. Scribner 1922 329p illus $2.50, popular ed $1.50 (4-8) 220

"The text is simplified only so far as is necessary to make it understandable to children." Cleveland

"Contains 32 pictures reproduced from paintings, 16 in color and others in duotone. Twelve of the pictures are by W. L. Taylor and were originally published in the 'Ladies' Home Journal.'" Pittsburgh

The popular edition has five illustrations, one in color, the others in black and white. The contents are the same

* First Bible; illus. by Helen Sewell (selected and arranged by J. W. Maury). Oxford 1934 109p illus $2.50 (4-8) 220

"This is the sort of Bible which every adult may well wish might have appeared years ago to give an introduction to the dignity and beauty of the Bible. Helen Sewell has provided illustrations which are peculiarly appropriate to the stories from the King James version. The stories selected are those which time has proved to be the most interesting and inspiring to youth of every age." Wis. bul.

Junior Bible; an American translation, ed. by E. J. Goodspeed; illus. by Frank Dobias. Macmillan 1936 282p illus $2.50 (5-7) 220

"Believing that the Bible is a book to be enjoyed, and keeping in mind the interests of children, Dr. Goodspeed has selected incidents from his own translation of especial interest to younger readers. The 29 Old Testament and 23 New Testament incidents are prefaced by paragraphs which preserve the continuity of the narrative. Black and white illustrations by Frank Dobias and attractive maps for end papers add to the charm of the book." Wis. bul.

* Little children's Bible. Macmillan 1924 121p (Little library) $1 (3-5) 220

First published 1858, and translated into English 1860. This edition has an introduction by Effie L. Power

"A pastoral romance with Norwegian setting telling of the friendship of Eyvind and little Marit, which ripens into love as they grow up together." Cleveland

"There are the freshness of out-of-doors in the book and a certain homely, everyday atmosphere that gives it a quality both realistic and idyllic. The illustrations have caught the quaint and kindly charm of the story." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Sunny hill; a Norwegian idyll; tr. from "Synnövé Solbakken"; introduction by A. S. Cutter; illus. by Johan Bull. Macmillan 1932 153p illus (Children's classics) $1.50 (7-9) Fic

Published in 1857 and first translated into English the following year by Mary Howitt. This edition has an introduction by Annie Spencer Cutter

A Norwegian story that will be enjoyed by older girls. "Sunny Hill (Synnövé Solbakken) was the first of Björnson's novels dealing with peasant life in Norway. It is a pastoral romance, telling the love story of Synnövé Solbakken, who lived in a sunny Norwegian valley, and Thorbjörn, who lived at Granliden, so-called because it was surrounded by a forest of fir trees." these stories together from many and varied sources. He has centered these tales, in a continuous narrative, about the outstanding Culture Hero of the Northern Tribes, Winabojo." The author

Analyzed in Eastman supplement
"Collection of folk tales and fables of Finland, all of which have been translated from original sources. The tales are arranged under the headings: tales of magic; droll stories; and fables. Contains a glossary of Finnish words." Book rev. digest "An outstanding addition to folk literature available for children. . . These stories have the tang of common sense, the wonder with which the folk-tale invests all the homely, everyday things of life, and a keen sense of fundamental values. . . A book to captivate boys and girls. . . one that will interest students of folklore and one that story-tellers will find invaluable."

Boy who could do anything & other Mexican folk tales, retold by Anita Brenner; illus. by Jean Charlot. Scott, W.R. 1942 134p illus $2.50 (4-6) 398

Twenty-four representative Mexican folk tales given as they are being told in Mexico today

Contents: Luz, the story-teller; Boy who took care of the pigs; Happy milkmaid; Dumb Juan and the bandits; Ant, and the lamb, the cricket, and the mouse; Some impatient muledrivers; Teutli, the mountain that is alive; Tepozton; How Tepozton killed the giant; How Tepozton hung the bells; Magic grocery store; Man who stayed too long; Funny, funny; Princess and Jose; Rabbit who wanted to be a man; How Flint-face lost his name; One roll of bread; Devil and the railroad; Boy who beat the devil; Bow, the deer, and the talking bird; Dead man who was alive; Cow that cried; Poor widow bull-fighter; Chucho, who's afraid; Maria sat on the fire; Malintzin

"These stories have a double interest, for though some of them come from ancient Indian mythology before the Spanish conquest, we find in even the oldest of the tales modern touches, such as alarm clocks, automobiles and railroads, showing that Mexican folklore is still alive and growing as it is handed on from one generation to the next." * (comp.) Gaily we parade; a collection of poems about people, here, there & everywhere; illus. by Robert Lawson. Macmillan 1940 218p illus $2.50 (3-7) 821.08

The collection is divided into groups as follows: Come buy; To the shops we go; These make a town; Relatives all; At our house; Neighbors of ours; Willingly to school; Sing ho! Ye sailormen; Beyond far blue hills; Out in the country; We are the music makers; Ring-a-ring o' fairies; Some see this and some see that; At the royal court; Ring around the world; Bells for Christmas ring; Funny folk; Dustman comes; Vespers

"This time, Mr. Brewton has specialized in poems about people. The title is well chosen, for a livelier, more spirited collection could scarcely have been assembled. Shopkeepers and sailormen, fairies and neighbors all make a goodly company, and the authors range from Blake and Keats to Rachel Field and Elizabeth Madox Roberts. Not a few are newcomers to our juvenile anthologies and will make many friends among boys and girls from eight to twelve." Library journal

"All about the deer and antelopes of North America in detailed picture and story. Valuable for reference and general reading, the book tells how best to see deer and to recognize their tracks, and how to read the signs where they have been, as well as much about their appearance and habits. Ontario library review "Illustrations in color and black-and-white are accurate, his text a model of clear and readable presentation of scientific facts." N.Y. public lib.

* Paddlewings; the penguin of Galápagos; pictures by the author. Macmillan 1931 106p illus $2.50 (4-6) 598.2

"Paddlewings was a delightful young penguin, as full of curiosity as a child, and possessed of highly intelligent parents. This story of his adventures takes him from the day when he came into the world in his native Galápagos until in the company of an artist and a scientist he arrived at the New York Aquarium. The history of Paddlewings' ancestors is woven into his story. Illustrated by the author." Book rev. digest

"Similar to 'Fingerfins' in treatment and in its graphic and amusing illustrations." Bkl.

* Pollwiggles' progress; pictures and story by W. S. Bronson. Macmillan 1932 122p illus $2.50 (3-5) 597.8

"With scientific accuracy joined to enthusiasm and humor, the life history of a bullfrog is related in all stages from egg to mating time. The illustrations are numerous and amusing." Right book for the right child

* Turtles; written and illus. by W. S. Bronson. Harcourt 1945 63p illus $1.75 (3-6) 598.1

Simply written information about turtles, including the care of turtles as pets. Illustrated with cartoon-like drawings

"This is one of the most informing and amusing of Mr. Bronson's introductions to natural history. Whatever he says . . . he promptly puts into pictures, and these, without departing from facts, manage always to infuse them with a certain gayety." Weekly book rev.

Water people; written and illus. by W. S. Bronson. Wise bk. co. 1935 119p illus $2.50 (4-5) 591.92

"The water creatures are grouped by their namesakes on land. 'The oceanic orchestra,' for example, includes the fiddler crab, the guitar fish, the sea drum, and the pipe fish. Their appearance and habits are described in short chapters for fourth and fifth grade children. Many colored illustrations." Bkl.

Wonder world of ants; illus. by the author. Harcourt 1937 87p illus $1.50 (4-6) 595.7

In addition to descriptions of the familiar types of ants the author tells of devastating army ants of Africa, hunter ants, farmer ants, thief ants, slave-making ants and other varieties found in all parts of the world

Child's good night book; with color lithographs by Jean Charlot. Scott, W.R. 1943 (24)p illus $1 (1-2) E

"A bedtime story for little children about animals and birds and children as they settle down quietly for the night." Hunting

The lithographs in soft colors add distinction and meaning to the rhythmic text

Little chicken; pictures by Leonard Weisgard. Harper 1943 (39)p illus $1.50 (1-3) E

"The story of the little chicken's meetings with various creatures when he obeyed the rabbit's suggestion that he 'run along and find someone to play with.'" Hunting

Illustrated in color and in sepia

The little fireman; pictures by Esphyr Slobodkina. Scott, W. R. (34)p illus $1.25 (1-3) E

"The little fireman does everything that the big fireman does, but he does it on a child-size scale. This is a revised, less-expensive edition of a story first published in 1938. Illustrations in color." Hunting

* Little fisherman; a fish story; with illus. by Dahlov Ipcar. Scott, W. R. 1945 (34)p illus $1.50 (1-3) E

Picture book in four colors with running text which tells the story of the big fisherman and the little fisherman who sail their boats far out to sea to catch fish for the people in the village

"These are pictures to be enjoyed by adults as well as children; boys and girls, however, will take especial delight in discovering the well-chosen details in each picture, clearly presented without clutter or confusion." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

* Little lost lamb, by Golden MacDonald (pseud); with illus. by Leonard Weisgard. Doubleday 1945 (40)p illus $2 (1-3) E

High in the mountains the boy shepherd watched his sheep. And that was where he lost his little black lamb. But late that night, after the stars came out and the wind blew cold, he and his dog went back up the treacherous mountainside to find the little lost lamb

"This brilliantly colorful picture book has four four-color illustrations and many wash drawings in brown tones." Library journal

Red light, green light; written by Golden MacDonald (pseud); illus. by Leonard Weisgard. Doubleday 1944 40p illus $2 (1-3) E

A picture book in which the truck, the car, the jeep, the horse, the boy, the dog, and the cat each come out in the morning and set forth upon their separate roads. The mouse, too, has its own special road through a grassy tunnel

"The words are not at all dramatic, but the pictures are. They are strikingly designed in soft browns with accents in red or green." Library journal

Runaway bunny; pictures by Clement Hurd. Harper 1942 (40)p illus $1.50 (1-2) E

"There is a definite nursery rime quality in this brightly colored picture book about a bunny who finally gave up all thought of running away because mother rabbit was too clever for him. Small children will find the rhythmical repetition irresistible and will undoubtedly amplify the story with ideas of their own." Bkl.

"A continuation of Stevenson's story told in a style imitative of him by a man who knows all about sailing. Beginning with characters or situations suggested by Stevenson, such as John Silver's 'old mis-sus,' the three men left on the island and the doubt of Mr. Blandly's integrity, a good pirate and treasure story is created which will be responsible for many a re-reading of 'Treasure island' itself." "A notable anthology of folk songs and folk tales reflecting America's work and growing. Here, in stories, songs, and appropriate pictures, are 29 American work-heroes from east, west, north, and south—lumberjacks, cotton pickers, miners, fishermen, cowboys, raftsmen, and the rest. The songs have been edited, and the musical scores were arranged by Edwin John Stringham for group singing. Many double-spread colored illustrations by Elizabeth Black Carmer." Bkl.

Wildcat furs to China; the cruise of the sloop Experiment; illus. by E. B. Carmer. Knopf 1945 76p illus $2 (3-5) Fic

The story of a voyage to China and back in a 60 foot sloop "Experiment" in the late 1700's, the second ship to make this trip. Based on facts, actual names being used

"Since this is a true story of real people Mr. Carmer hasn't tried to adorn it with fictional drama. He has even underplayed some of the impact with which those exotic scenes and people must have struck the boys, but he has made a readable narrative full of colorful details of this momentous voyage to warm the imaginations of 8 to 12-year-olds. There are many drawings by Mrs. Carmer, some of them stiff, but the seascapes in color are exciting." N.Y. Times

Canada and her northern neighbors. Am. bk. 1946 438p illus maps $1.40 (4-6) 917.1

An attractive geographical reader, giving the historical background of Canada, and much useful information about Canada today. There is a section on relations with the United States, illustrated with many photographs, maps, and charts. An index adds to its usefulness as a reference book

Our little friends of Eskimo land, Papik and Natsek; illus. by Curtiss Sprague. Am. bk. 1931 239p illus 96c (3-4) 919.8

"Follows an Eskimo boy and girl through a year's adventures, relating many of their every-day experiences. There are seal hunts on the ice, reindeer hunts on land, and festivals in the singing-house. Many pictures." Pittsburgh

Our little friends of Norway, Ola and Marit; illus. by Curtiss Sprague. Am. bk. 1936 213p illus 96c (3-4) 914.81

"Country life characteristic of Norway during the four seasons is described in this geographical reader telling of Ola and Marit. Visits to Bergen and Oslo show something of city life." Bkl.

Our little friends of Switzerland, Hansli and Heidi; illus. by Curtiss Sprague. Am. bk. 1941 224p illus 96c (3-5) 914.94

"In this volume a boy and girl of an Alpine village are followed through their day-to-day activities during the four seasons. . . . The children themselves are shown at home, in school, in their village, and on the mountains. . . . The boy and the girl hear bits of ancient folklore, which are directly related to customs that are part of their daily life." Preface Large type; attractive drawings

Our little friends of the Arabian desert, Adi and Hamda; illus. by Curtiss Sprague. Am. bk. 1934 232p illus 96c (3-4) 915.3

"This describes the daily life of the young son and daughter of a Bedouin sheik, and the activities of the tribe, through a year of wandering and trading. Stress is laid upon the influence of native environment on manners and customs. The material is well and simply presented for third and fourth grades. Textbook binding, good type, inviting page, and interesting illustrations." Bkl.

Our little friends of the Netherlands, Dirk and Dientje; illus. by Curtiss Sprague. Am. bk. 1935 201p illus 96c (3-4) 914.92

"Designed to give a sympathetic understanding of present-day life in Holland. The material, presented in a simple story form, includes information concerning the geography of the country, the manners and customs of the people, and something of their history and legends." Bkl.

Our little neighbors at work and play; here, there, then, and now. Am. bk. 1939 232p illus $1.20 (3-5) 910

"The theme. . . is the use which man makes of the gifts of nature in supplying his basic needs of food, shelter, and clothing. These subjects are presented informally in the form of stories, adapted to the comprehension and interest of the child about to begin the study of geography." Plan and purpose

A textbook useful with younger children. Double column, large type, many illustrations

Our neighbors near and far. Am. bk. 1939 222p illus (Our world and ourselves) $1.20 (4-5) 910

In a series of journeys the child visits the Amazon jungles, the Arctic, the Sahara desert, the African jungles, the mountains of Switzerland, the Netherlands, the Mediterranean, Norwegian fishing ports, China, etc. A geography text for younger children

The 1934 edition has been revised by shortening chapter 12 by four pages and substituting a chapter on China for the one on the Kirghiz people and another called "A journey from pole to pole." About eight new pictures replace old ones in the rest of the text which otherwise remains the same

Men of power; a book of dictators; illus.
by Marc Simont. Viking 1940 272p illus $2.50 (8-9) 920

"Through the careers of nine men from Richelieu to the present, Mr. Carr has traced the recurrent pattern of dictatorship for children as he did in 'Juggernaut' for adults. Its purpose is to arouse young Americans to awareness of the characteristics of dictatorship and to set them on their guard against it in its early and fair-seeming forms. The ultimate plea is for alert, informed citizenship. . . With all its defects it is a book written (without) hatred. . . Contents: Richelieu, Cromwell, Frederick the Great, Napoleon, Bolby his Cree mother in 1832 with a company of French fur traders down the Columbia river to the far western post of the Hudson's Bay company in Fort Vancouver, Washington. There young Mac, fearful and unwilling to be placed under the guardianship of the chief factor of the fort, gradually adjusted himself to his new life. . . Excellent characterization and lively incident against an authentic historical background make this a distinguished book." Bkl.

Man who dared to care; the story of James Edward Oglethorpe, 1696-1785; decorations by Fay Turpin. Longmans 1942 217p illus $2 (7-9) 92

"A biography of James Edward Oglethorpe, the founder of Georgia, written in semi-fictional form for young people." Book rev. digest

"This inspiring account tells nothing of his childhood, but concentrates on his long career as champion of the oppressed, on his association with some of the great minds of England, and on conditions in England and America in the seventeenth century." Bkl.

Man who would not wait; the story of Aaron Burr. Longmans 1941 223p $2 (7-9) 92

"A credible biography of one of history's most controversial figures. Burr's headstrong youth figures more prominently here than does his later, more questionable life, and yet the author has dealt fairly with his faults and virtues alike. A vivid and readable story of a nation, as well as of a man's character, in the making." Bkl.

Carroll, Ruth (Robinson) 1899— and Carroll, Latrobe, 1894—

Scuffles; pictures by Ruth Carroll. Oxford 1943 47p illus $1 (1-3) E

The story is "about the puppy (who wasn't any one kind of dog) who went to school and didn't fit into the class for sheep dog training, nor into the class of racing dogs, but who turned out to be just right for the pet class. He found he wasn't lonesome any longer, and he went out to look for the right home and discovered it for himself." Kirkus

In this book, Patrick Henry as a boy of nine, enjoys the outdoors and cares little for school. As a youth he tries his hand at store-keeping and farming and later succeeds in his efforts to be admitted to the bar. The story of his career as patriot and governor includes many scenes of home and family life

Bibliography: p241-44

An "excellent biography of Patrick Henry. . . . [The author] clarifies the objectives behind his great speeches, and points out [his] share in preparing the way for the American Revolution. She makes the freedom-loving patriot real to the present generation." Horn book

In nine stories and one play "the author presents each of the ten greatest dynasties in China, from the beginning of the Chou in 1100 B.C. to the (time of Chiang Kai-shek). Each story has a short historical introduction to parallel Chinese history with what was going on in the Western world at the same time." Hunt-

 Warner, Julius von Mohl, and Turner Macan., Preface
 "In his rendering of the story of the Persian hero, the author has had the young reader in mind and has presented a connected narrative that can be followed with ease. It is written with a zest that matches the heroic episodes of the old legend and the illustrations are derived from careful study of Persian manuscripts." Bkl.

Chin, Stanley Hong, and Fowler, Virginia
 Two lands for Ming; illus. by Stanley Chin. Scribner 1945 248p illus $2 (5-7) Fic
 "This is the story of the boys of the Poy Gee School and of life in the village of Shew Ton in southeast China. It is especially the story of Kwok Ming who has a slightly different heritage from his cousins and his friends for he, because his parents were born in America, is an American. . . And then comes the news that he is to go to America. . . The story is subordinated to the background, but because of the fascination of China and her customs and traditions to many people this does not detract from the interest and charm of the book. It does mean, however, that it is more likely to be used for supplementary school reading than enjoyed as a story." Sat. rev. of lit.

Analyzed in Eastman supplement

Contents: Ah Mee's invention; Shen of the sea; How wise were the old men; Chop-sticks; Buy a father; Four generals; Rain king's daughter; Many wives; That lazy Ah Fun; Moon maiden; Ah Tcha the sleeper; I wish it would rain; High as Han Hsin; Contrary Chueh Chun; Pies of the princess; As Hai Low kept house

"Short stories about Chinese people and life which blend happily a foreign atmosphere and a sense of reality. Some have a folklore quality and all are told delightfully with humor and sprightliness. Not too difficult for children of nine and ten although many older ones will enjoy them. Silhouette illustrations full of action and interest." Bkl.

Treasures long hidden; old tales and new tales of the East; illus. by Weda Yap. Dutton 1941 302p illus $2.75 (4-6) 398

"Well-chosen tales depicting much of the dignity and justice and love for beauty traditional in old Cathay. Styled in simplicity, and abounding with word-pictures as colorful as China itself, the volume reveals that strangely haunting magic typical of its source." Springfield Republican

Fifteen Chinese folk tales, retold for young readers or for use in storytelling. Contents: Giving fine gifts; Borrowed things are often kept; Treasures long hidden; Almost a king; Indigo bridge; Spreading vine; Calling himself grandmother; Wishes come true; To find an honest man; Scholarly king; Dragon's bride; His father's staff; King with horse and foot; Bar of gold; Let justice prevail

Wind that wouldn't blow; stories of the merry Middle Kingdom for children, and myself; with silhouette decorations cut by Else Hasselriis. Dutton 1927 355p illus o.p. 1946 (5-8) Fic

Analyzed in Eastman supplement

Contents: Shen of colored cords; Sonless king; King who had no daughter; Little brother; The "Was-a-boy"; Wind that wouldn't blow; Kings hungry; Wing dow; Garden down in Kiang Sing; Picture princess; Tell tale chalk; Ming, the miser; Shen who misunderstood; Far to voyage; Bitter waters; Now it is written

"Some of the tales were old before Chieh Chung found the marks by which one might write; others are as young as yesterday; but all are fresh and full of humor and of the magic of quaint words. The silhouettes of old China are not the least of the book's charm." Cleveland

(5-9) 883

First published 1907
"A simple retelling of the story of the Trojan war, and particularly of those events which followed upon Achilles' wrath.
The story is cut down to its bare essentials, yet it follows the original faithfully, and the choice of English words is admirable. It is suitable for reading aloud, and is, by all means, the best version of the Iliad for younger boys and girls." Toronto

* Odyssey for boys and girls, told from Homer. Macmillan 1925 308p illus

(Children's classics) $1.50 (5-9) 883

Flaxman illustrations in color. First published in 1906

"Narrates the thrilling adventures encountered by Ulysses and his men on their homeward voyage after the downfall of Troy. The incidents are simply told, in the order of events, and the spirit of Homer is preserved both in the text and the illustrations. Interesting to read and useful for story-telling." Right book for

* In my mother's house; illus. by Velino Herrera. Viking 1941 56p illus $2 (1-5) 970.1

The story of the day-to-day life of an Indian child in the Southwest

"Written to answer the need for books with the Indian point of view for use in Indian schools, the book has great significance for white children as well. Indian children helped make the book, helped write the short sentences that read like free verse. . . Illustrations by Velino Herrera add distinction; he uses tribal designs in addition to numerous drawings in black and white and lovely soft color, all illustrating Tewa Indian life." Library Journal

* Little Navajo bluebird; illus. by Paul Lantz. Viking 1943 143p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

"A story of present day Navajos who still live far from civilization. The young heroine of six is a member of a devoted family who live in a hogan of round mud-plastered walls, windowless and dependent on a hole in the roof for the fire smoke. They have their flock of sheep, drink goat's milk, lie on sheepskins, the mother weaves lovely blankets, while the father makes beautiful silver jewelry." Kirkus

"The quiet beauty of the Navajo country is fully realized in both the pictures and text of this sensitive story." N.Y. public lib.

- "Dan Beard's name is synonymous with Scouting. This informal biography reveals him, also, as illustrator, author, editor, humorist, and, above all, as friend. One of the high spots of the book is the picture it gives of Mark Twain, for whom Dan Beard illustrated several books." Hunting
- Several minor changes and additions are made in this edition, published after the death of Dan Beard. A chapter containing tributes to his memory is also added

* Alice-all-by-herself; pictures by Marguerite de Angeli. Macmillan 1937 181p illus $2.50 (4-6) Fic

"Stories of a ten-year-old girl who lived in Damariscotta, Maine, and of the good times she had at the circus, on picnics, on her visit to Wiscasset when she sat on a chair which formerly belonged to Marie Antoinette, and fishing thru the ice, among other pleasures." Book rev. digest

"Rather a quiet little story, told with great charm." Wis. bul.

* Away goes Sally; pictures by Helen Sewell. Macmillan 1934 122p illus $2.25 (4-6) Fic

"This charming story of a little girl transported from Massachusetts to Maine in a little house on runners, drawn by twelve strong oxen, is refreshingly different from other tales of 1800. The short poems between chapters, and Helen Sewell's interpretive illustrations make it one of the distinctive books of the year." N.Y. public lib.

Boy with the parrot; a story of Guatemala; pictures by W. S. Bronson. Macmillan 1930 101p illus $2 (5-7) Fic

"Miss Coatsworth writes with her usual charm, and not only is Sebastian a real boy but the book gives the atmosphere of the country and the reader shares something of Sebastian's feeling for the ancient and mysterious civilizations—Indian and Spanish—of which he finds traces in his travels. The title is well chosen and the illustrations by Wilfred S. Bronson are excellent." N.Y. Times

* Cat and the captain; illus. by Gertrude Kaye. Macmillan 1927 95p illus (Little library) $1 (3-4) Fic

"The captain, his pet, a big black cat, and Susannah the cook are an interesting trio, and make an entertaining tale for younger children." St Louis

Awarded the Newbery medal, 1931

"Into the home of a poor young artist in Japan comes a little three-colored cat, said to bring good luck. She watches the painter as he works on the picture commissioned for the temple, introducing the animals, one after another. The story reveals the sacrifice made by the artist and the miracle by which 'Good Fortune' is at last numbered among those blessed by the Buddha. Poems and pictures add to the atmosphere." Pittsburgh

"Into this lovely and imaginative story the author has put something of the serenity and beauty of the East and of the gentleness of a religion that has a place even for the humblest of living creatures. . . The illustrations have so much beauty in themselves and are so in the spirit of the text that we have the feeling that we are looking at the picture made by the artist in the story." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Cricket and the emperor's son; pictures by Weda Yap. Macmillan 1932 112p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

"Cricket, a Japanese boy, treasured every scrap of paper he found on the streets of Tokio. One piece proved to be real magic, as it unrolled story after story, and these thrilling tales Cricket told to the emperor's little, ailing son. The stories are full of plot and excitement, some treating of old China; some, of legendary Japan." Ontario library review

* Dancing Tom; pictures by Grace Paull. Macmillan 1938 49p illus $1.50 (2-3) Fic

"It was the lively antics of Tom, the pig, who danced to the tune of 'Yankee Doodle,' which cheered the Fosters on their long journey on a flatboat down the Mississippi one hundred years ago. A slight story, with good background which may lead to an interest in pioneer life." Bkl.

* Fair American; pictures by Helen Sewell. Macmillan 1940 132p illus $2 (4-6) Fic Follows "Five bushel farm." "The Sally and Andrew of 'Away Goes Sally' and 'Five Bushel Farm' voyage to France on the ship of Andrew's father, 'The Fair American.' But the story is Pierre's, the sole survivor of his aristocratic family in the French Revolution. His escape with an old servant in the night, the tramping along country roads in disguise, slipping on board 'The Fair American' as a cabin boy, and the near capture on the high seas are all sympathetically and realistically told. Beneath the surface of the story, however, one feels the power and beauty of the ship itself." Library journal

Two additional stories which follow "Fair American" in sequence are:

Coatsworth, E. J. White horse; pictures by Helen Sewell. Macmillan 1942 164p illus $2 In which Sally and Andrew are captured by pirates and taken to Morocco

Coatsworth, E. J. Wonderful day; pictures by Helen Sewell. Macmillan 1946 126p illus $2 Sally and Andrew combine efforts to save Five Bushel Farm and celebrate the return of Pierre

* Five Bushel farm; pictures by Helen Sewell. Macmillan 1939 152p illus $2.25 (4-5) Fic

A companion story to an earlier book by the same author entitled "Away goes Sally." This story is about Andy who came to live near Sally in the Penobscot valley back in pioneer days

"A pioneer story with excellent characterization and true feeling of the period." Cleveland

* Golden horseshoe; illus. by Robert Lawson. Macmillan 1935 151p illus $2 (5-7) Fic

"Tamar was Roger Stafford's half-sister and the fact that her mother was an Indian, albeit a princess, was a source of mortification to that young colonial Virginian. How Tamar won his admiration and the esteem of her mother's people makes a story full of action and interest.

The background of colonial life is colorful and vital. Good format and attractive illustrations." Bkl.

Houseboat summer; illus. by Marguerite Davis. Macmillan 1942 191p illus $2.25 (4-6) Fic

"Two children spend a long happy summer visiting their aunt and uncle in Maine. A summer of rich experiences—living on a houseboat, exploring the lovely Damariscotta region, but best of all, a boy's growth in self-reliance and the awakening of understanding and companionship between brother and sister." Bkl.

Kitten stand; pictures by Katharine Keeler. Grosset 1945 28p illus 50c E

"This is a magazine length story about two small girls and the ingenious way they find for disposing of unwanted kittens. There are many . . . pictures of little girls and kittens. Originally appeared in 'Story-Parade Magazine.' Library journal

* Little house; illus. by Marguerite Davis. Macmillan 1940 150p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

A story about a little house in Hingham, Massachusetts that was loaned to three children for a summer holiday

"A warmhearted book which girls of from seven to eleven should relish because in it every little girl's dream comes true: the children of the story are given a tiny house—a real house, not just a plaything—to have for their own all one happy summer." New Yorker

* Sword of the wilderness; illus. by Harvé Stein. Macmillan 1936 160p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"A story of the French and Indian wars in New England. Seth Hubbard is captured by the Abenakis and spends a bitter winter with them. The scene is Maine and Canada; the time 1689." Book rev. digest

"The style has genuine beauty and the author has painted an arresting picture of New England country. . . Always there is kept before the reader the contrast between Indian and settler, explaining the course of events and the inevitable outcome." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Thief island; illus. by John Wonsetler. Macmillan 1943 118p illus $1.75 (4-7) Fic

"The setting of this story of mystery and danger is a deserted island off the coast of Maine. Landscape, moods of weather, and an engaging ghost contribute to the sustained drama of the tale." N.Y. public lib.

Trudy and the tree house; illus. by Marguerite Davis. Macmillan 1944 113p illus $1.50 (3-5) Fic

Trudy, youngest of the seven Davis sisters, persuaded her father to build a little house for her up in the oak tree, where she could have a place by herself. She shared it with Mr Chubb, the squirrel, and she entertained her family and friends there

"Trudy's adventures are most entertaining. An attractive little book nicely illustrated." Sat. rev. of lit.

Twelve months make a year; illus. by Marguerite Davis. Macmillan 1943 198p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

These stories run through all the months of the year and relate the experiences of a happy New England family whose adventures were told in the author's "Littlest house"

"This is a gay little volume which enshrines in a series of brilliantly colored illustrations the tale of the cock and the hen who tried to keep it from choking on a strawberry. The simple story itself is a Czecho-Slovak tale that builds up its chronicle on the principle of 'This is the house that Jack built,' and that insinuates a moral at the end. Small folk will delight in the profusion of color illustrations, and will doubtless enjoy the repetitive narrative." Sat. rev. of lit.

"The story of little Colum-cille, Irish saint of the sixth century, retold in the manner of the Celtic hero tale. Mr. Colum has drawn largely from the work of Manus O'Donnell in his selection of poetry and prose for his poetic rendering of the legend. Miss MacKinsty's interpretive drawings in black and white are strongly medieval in character and indicate the artist's saturation with Celtic lore." N.Y. public lib.

Analyzed in Eastman supplement

"Wise men come to visit the tower of Prince Henry of Portugal. They entertain him with romantic legends and tales of Atlantic discovery: The legend of Atlantis, The voyages of Maelduin and Saint Brendan, and the story of Eric the Red. To these the author has added picturesque accounts of the adventures of Columbus, Ponce de Leon and John Smith. Color prints and drawings by Wilfred Jones." N.Y. state lib.

"Fascinating material, interestingly assembled." Bkl.

Where the winds never blew and the cocks never crew; illus. by Richard Bennett. Macmillan 1940 95p illus $1.50 (4-5) Fic

"To the lands where the winds never blew and cocks never crew and where nobody was ever born or died, came Tibbie the cat, Gruff the dog, old Mother Gabbie, the goose, a cricket, a pigeon, a guinea hen, a wren, and a goat. Happily they lived together until a beautiful swan's song lured them away one by one, except for Tibbie and the cricket who returned to the Old Woman's hearth to ever recall the happenings there have been in the world. Told with Irish wit and humor." Bkl.

A story of "Read's Landing on the Minnesota shores of the Mississippi in 1874-5. Captain Dustin had just bought the 'Johnny Smoker,' a little side-wheeler, and the family were to spend the winter on board while Captain Dustin and his sons cut timber until the spring thaw." Hunting

"The story has a sturdy homespun quality which is very appealing. Although at times the narrative does not flow freely, the material has the earmarks of authenticity, and the author . . . gives a picture of steamboat days in the late nineteenth century that has freshness and charm." Compton's pictured encyclopedia. Compton * 1946 15v illus $89.50 030

First published in 1922, this is one of the standard encyclopedias for children and young people. It is revised at each printing to keep it up-to-date, to add new articles of current interest and to expand older material where needed

The arrangement is alphabetical, with many broad general articles in which closely related topics are treated together. The "Fact index" gives exact page references to small topics, gathers material together under broad headings, includes much factual information, indexes pictures

Detailed reviews of the encyclopedia and its frequent revisions may be found in various issues of the A.L.A. Subscription books bulletin, for example, Oct. 1932, p49-50; Oct. 1943, p38-40

"The mechanics of steam have been reduced to the simplest form in this book for young readers. Beginning with steam in a tea-kettle pushing the lid up and down, the authors explain the development of the steam engine from Stephenson's Rocket of 1829 to the huge engines of today." Book rev. digest

"The authors approach their audience without condescension and make no attempt to write down to children, with the result that this little book has a dignity and charm of its own. Teachers will find it invaluable, and to children as young as 7 it is already proving both stimulating and satisfying." A. T. Eaton in N.Y.

* Down down the mountain. Nelson 1934 147p illus $1.50 (3-4) Fic

"How Hetty and Hank, who lived high in the Blue Ridge mountains, raised some fine turnips which they hoped to trade for shiny, squeaky shoes, and how their kindness of heart almost defeated their plan. A short delightful story that gives a simple, pleasant picture of mountain life. Attractive format with large pages that afford the space necessary for the simple, two-color drawings, by the author, that so successfully illustrate the book." Bkl.

"Into the writing of this definitive biography of the great woman scientist, Eve Curie has brought the skill of a trained writer, the research of a scientist, and the love of a daughter. She describes her mother's early years in which she surmounted all hardships to pursue the course she had chosen, then the tragic death of her husband, and finally her pressing on to new and greater heights of achievement, totally oblivious to fame, honour and health. The world knows the record of her career, but for the first time reads of her background and private life." Ontario library review

- * America begins; the story of the finding of the new world; with illus. by Lois Maloy. Scribner 1938 178p illus $2 (3-4) 973.1

A picture story for children who are beginning to be curious about the things that happened in America before they were born. In preparing the text original narratives were used and the pictures are based, whenever possible, on pictures of the period

"While the information is by no means comprehensive it is of a kind that will interest children and arouse their curiosity." Ontario library review

- * America builds homes; the story of the first colonies; with illus. by Lois Maloy. Scribner 1938 177p illus $2 (3-4) 973.2

Descriptions for children from eight to ten years of how the first settlers came to live in the United States and of homes in Virginia, New England, New Netherlands, and Pennsylvania

"The scheme of this undertaking reveals itself as different from anything that preceded it. . . The pictures are noticeable for simplicity and for detail: that is, the details most needed to make all plain are brought out in simple, striking designs." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

- * America travels; the story of a hundred years of travel in America; illus. by Hildegard Woodward. Macmillan 1933 121p illus $2 (4-6) 380

"A story-history of American travel. Part one is made up of a series of eight stories of traveling, arranged in chronological order, and part two is straight description covering all aspects of travel in the United States during the last hundred years. Illustrated with many drawings in black and white." Book rev. digest

"The subtitle, 'A Story of London Children in the Eighteenth Century and of Mr. Newbery's Juvenile Library, embellished with ten elegant drawings—to which are added eleven cuts from old books with an epigram in verse adapted to each,' describes in a measure what Miss Dalglish has done to celebrate the first real publication of children's books two hundred years ago. The book is a rare treat for teachers and students of children's literature with its cover a copy of the old 'flowery and gilt paper,' with its quaint title-page and the decorated pages before each chapter, with its glimpses of John Newbery, Doctor Johnson, and even a Garrick play." Library journal

- Choosing book; illus. by E. B. Wilkin. Macmillan 1932 56p illus $1.25 (1-2) E

* Relief's rocker; a story of Sandy Cove and the sea; pictures by Hildegard Woodward. Macmillan 1932 62p illus $1.75 (4-5) Fic

"'Relief's Rocker' we have found particularly appealing with its altogether natural and unforced story. Here again is the background that Miss Dalglish handled so delightfully in 'The Blue Teapot and Other Sandy Cove Stories' last year, and here is a salty tang and talk that is real talk, and a little painted rocker that played a strange part in the mysterious return of a sea-faring uncle." Rachel Field in Sat. rev. of lit.

Roundabout; another Sandy Cove story; illus. by Hildegard Woodward. Macmillan 1934 64p illus $2 (4-5) Fic

"Ann and her mother went to Sandy Cove to live in the small house bequeathed to them by an old uncle; this pleasant, well-illustrated story tells what happened there." Ontario library review

* Silver pencil; decorations by Katherine Milhous. Scribner 1944 235p illus $2.50 (7-9) Fic

This story of life in four countries—Trinidad, England, the United States and Nova Scotia—tells of the making of a teacher and a writer

"An honest book, telling of one girl's growth of understanding, drawn from various backgrounds, professions and people. An enduring story, touched with universal wisdom." N.Y. public lib.

The Smiths and Rusty; illus. by Berta and Elmer Hader. Scribner 1936 118p illus $1.75 (3-4) Fic

"When the Smiths moved from their city apartment into a house in the country, they finally had room for a dog. Rusty, a cocker spaniel, took refuge on their doorstep during a storm and thus added himself to the family circle. The story tells how Susan and Greg adapted themselves to their new school and environment, and how they and Rusty broke into the movies." Wis. bul.

Alice Dalglish's "Wings for the Smiths" (Scribner 1937 89p illus $1.75) continues the story of the Smith family

Analyzed in Eastman supplement

Contents: Truce of the wolf; Tale of Nanni; Signora Lupa and the fig tree; Calandrino and the pig; Boar who was a man; Goblin and the rose; Enchanted cow

"Seven Italian tales and legends retold for children. The first story, The truce of the wolf, is retold from the 'Fioretti' of St Francis of Assisi. The story of The Signora Lupa and the fig tree was told the author by a Tuscan peasant woman; Calandrino and the pig is from the Decameron; The boar who was a man, The goblin and the rose, and The enchanted cow are adapted from Legends of Florence, by Charles Godfrey Leland." Book rev. digest

"Miss Davis, who is known throughout the country for her story telling, has spent much time in Italy, and in this book of Italian tales and legends has caught the liveliness of Latin folk humor and in the legends something of the dreaminess of hot Florentine afternoons. It is a book of distinguished design." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

C. Young; Sailor's yarn,

De La Mare, W. J.—Continued

by J. Masfield; Seal man, by J. Masfield Lord Fish, by W. De La Mare; Running wolf, by A. Blackwood

An anthology of animal stories. Some are entirely re-written, in others the author has smoothed out rough places and given them his own particular touch. For illustrations he has selected the quaint, decorative woodcuts from an old "beastie" book. In the preface Mr De La Mare traces the development of the animal folk tale and comments on the stories. Each story is preceded by a poem

Bells and grass; illus. by D. P. Lathrop.
Viking 1942 144p illus $2.50 821

"Out of 'the self that still delighted . . . in the old folk-tales and fairy-tales, in the old nursery rhymes and jingles, in early memories, and in whatever else goes with being young; whether merry or sad, grave or gay or tender' this incomparable poetry was written. In illustration and format the book comes close to matching the beauty of the text." N.Y. public lib.

Child's day; a book of rhymes; with illus. by Winifred Bromhall. Holt 1923 87p illus $1.50 (3-5) 821

"Verse rendering of all the happenings in one day in the life of one little girl. Has whimsical charm and humor and is amusing as a picture book. For children under ten. An edition was published in 1912." Wis. bul.

* (comp.) Come hither; a collection of rhymes and poems for the young of all ages; embellished by Alec Buckels. rev ed Knopf 1928 xxxix, 823p illus $3.75 (6-9) 821.08

First published 1923

"Nearly five hundred selections representing a poet's choice, and including a number from modern writers. There is an introduction, in the form of a story, which shows the development of Mr. De La Mare's own love of poetry from the days of his early boyhood. The many notes 'written about and roundabout the poems' are also of unusual interest." Pittsburgh

"The introduction and anthology remain unchanged, but many entries have been added to the notes, increasing that part of the book from 171 pages to 304. The same illustrations have been used and the same general format." Bkl.

"Two long fairy stories for children: The Dutch cheese, and The lovely Myfanwy. Both stories appeared in 'Broomsticks'. The first is the story of John, a farmer who hated the fairies because he feared they would take his sister Griselda from him; the second is about a beautiful Welsh lady, her jealous father, a wandering magician, and what happened when the magician falls in love with the lady." Book rev. digest

* Mr Bumps and his monkey; illus. by D. P. Lathrop. Winston 1942 69p illus $2 (4-7) Fic

Story of a sailor of the name of John Bumps and Jasper, a monkey who came from Africa and, dressed in striped trousers, waistcoat, and high hat, becomes the toast of the theater

"The illustrations add fascination to a moving story of a small, subtle animal, seen with imagination." Horn book

* Peacock pie; a book of rhymes; with eighty-one little pictures in colour by Jocelyn Crowe. Holt 1936 111p illus $2.50 (4-8) 821

"While the book begins with very simple verses which young children will memorize almost unwittingly, it ends with poems which, though simple in expression, are profound enough to accompany the oldest of us on the gravest spiritual journeys." A. C. Moore

"A thoroughly satisfactory edition of this collection of poetry. Binding and paper are excellent, and the graceful drawings in color have caught the spirit of the text." Bkl.

The first book of the series

A simple picture of the everyday life of a little Indian boy, arranged in the form of a reader for first grade children

"Both text and illustrations suggest nothing but sincerity, forthrightness, and authenticity. Text and illustrations are well combined. The sentences are crisp and meaty, and avoid the rapidity which is so common in primers of 'the-boy-has-a-hat' type. The sentences proceed with artless directness. They have sequence; they build up an informing story of Indian life without resorting to fictitious plot or artificial rhetorical trimmings." Sat. rev. of lit. Followed by "Indians in winter camp"

Giotto tended the sheep; illus. by Dorothy Bayley. Dutton 1938 96p illus $3 (4-5) 92
"The simple biography opens with Cimabue's discovery of the boy Giotto tending his sheep and scratching his drawings on nearby stones, continues with the lad joining the famous artist's workshop in Florence, his years of apprenticeship and training, until finally Giotto has his own workshop and wins recognition from the Pope." Bkl.

Millet tilled the soil; illus. by Dorothy Bayley. Dutton 1939 94p illus $3 (4-5) 92
The story-life of Millet written for children. Contains illustrations in color and reproductions of several of his paintings in sepia

"Similar in style and format to previous books by these authors. . . . Text is interspersed with many drawings by Dorothy Bayley in color, in addition to reproductions of ten of Millet's best known masterpieces. . . . Should be of even greater appeal than the previous books, as Millet's pictures are familiar to many children." Library journal

* Microbe man; a life of Pasteur for young people; introduction by Pasteur Vallery-Radot; woodcuts by Robert Gibbings. Appleton-Century 1939 160p illus $1.50 (7-8) 92

A biography of the great French scientist written for young readers. Based on "La vie de Pasteur" by René Vallery-Radot

"In the earlier chapters, dealing with his childhood in Franche Comté, the author is, perhaps, a little too fond of rhetorical questions about the boy's future greatness. As the story progresses, however, Miss Doorly's handling becomes surer, and her account of Pasteur's adult life and of his works, first with crystals, then with ferments and finally with disease germs and vaccines, is admirably suited to the audience she has in mind." Three musketeers; with illus. from drawings by the French illustrator Maurice Leloir together with an introductory biographical sketch of the author and anecdotal captions by Basil Davenport. Dodd 555p illus (Great illustrated classics) $2.50 (8-9) Fic

This is an attractive edition with 16 illustrations from the drawings of Maurice Leloir, and good type

"The first of a series of three novels bearing ostensibly upon the lives and deeds of four adventurers, but really depicting the court life of France during the closing years of Louis XIII's reign and the opening years of the reign of the Grand Monarch, Louis XIV. To be exact, our chronicle begins on an April morning in the year 1626 with the appearance of its chief hero, D'Artagnan, and closes in 1671 with his death. The record is not continuous, but so far as its goes it is a marvellously faithful picture of the times. 'The Three Musketeers' covers nearly three years—1626-1628." Preface

Duncan, Eula Griffin

Big Road Walker; based on stories told by Alice Cannon; illus. by Fritz Eichenberg. Lippincott 1940 121p illus $2 (4-6) 398

"This distinctly original saga of a black 'Paul Bunyan' is based on stories told by a Negro cook in North Carolina. Evidently traditional but unlike 'Uncle Remus' in theme or treatment. The dialect is not difficult, being accomplished by simple spelling instead of elision. It has the flavor, naiveté, and unconscious humor of real southern Negro talk! Realism blends imperceptibly with the impossible. . . . Three of the stories unsuitable for younger children." Library Journal Behind the show window. Harcourt 1935 313p illus $2.50 (7-9) 338

"Miss Eaton spent two years in research before she wrote the book. She visited automobile factories, fruit ranches, packing plants, textile mills, docks, commission markets, research bureaus and government departments. . . Food industries take up about half the book; while several chapters are concentrated on textiles. . . Only two of the heavier industries are discussed: electrical goods and automobiles. Skillfully interwoven historical sketches of such commodities as coffee, silk and electricity give added romance." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

* Betsy's Napoleon; illus. by Pierre Bressaud. Morrow 1936 274p illus $2.50 (7-8) Fic

Betsy was Lucia Elizabeth Abell, at whose home Napoleon stayed when he first went to St Helena

"Every interpretation of Napoleon is necessarily subjected to divergent opinions of his true character, and this spirited and appealing book will be no exception. The story follows Elizabeth Balcombe Abell's 'Recollections of the Emperor Napoleon' very closely." Horn book

Daughter of the Seine; the life of Madame Roland. Harper 1929 324p illus o.p. 1946 (7-9) 92

"A biography of Madame Roland, a famous adherent of the French Revolution, which tells of her childhood, of her married life when her salon in Paris was the headquarters of the Republicans of France, and of her tragic death on the guillotine, giving at the same time a simple but scholarly presentation of that period in history preceding and following the French Revolution." St Louis

The flame, Saint Catherine of Siena. Harper 1931 318p illus o.p. 1946 (7-9) 92

"The story of St. Catherine of Siena, told dramatically with a vivid sense of the Italian hill towns in the fifteenth century." N.Y. public lib.

"Catherine, daughter of a tradesman of Siena, is pictured growing from childhood among everyday, homely surroundings, developing spiritual powers above the average, and becoming one of the foremost figures of Italy." St Louis

Jeanne d'Arc, the warrior saint; with drawings by Harve Stein. Harper 1931 102p illus o.p. 1946 (5-8) 92

"The story of the maid of Domremy is vividly and sympathetically told in this brief book. Because not only the beauty and sincerity of Jeanne's character are emphasized but also its human, lovable aspects, she becomes a living person that older girls will admire and enjoy." Bkl.

* Leader by destiny; George Washington, man and patriot; illus. by J. M. Rosé. Harcourt 1938 402p illus $3 (7-9) 92

Describes the change in Washington from Tory to Revolutionary point of view and his gradual development into the leader of the colonies

"This is a dignified and arresting biography, displaying evidence of much research. Washington's shortcomings in personality and judgment are not overlooked, and emphasis is laid on his character development." Bkl.

* Lone journey; the life of Roger Williams; illus. by Woodi Ishmael. Harcourt 1944 266p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

A biography of the man who left England to fight for freedom of speech and liberty of worship in colonial America. He founded a settlement in what is now Rhode Island and helped to create a truly democratic government

"The book succeeds in communicating the passionate strength with which Roger Williams sought to establish religious tolerance in his time. In the light of the world today, it has contemporary significance." N.Y. public lib.

* Narcissa Whitman; pioneer of Oregon; illus. by Woodi Ishmael. Harcourt 1941 318p illus map $2.50 (8-9) 92

The story of Narcissa Whitman, who in 1836 set out from New York for the almost unknown western country which is now Oregon. The author has gathered her material from letters and memoirs

"The inspiring story of a great woman told with understanding of her place in America's development. Of special interest to older girls." N.Y. public lib.

Story of light; with pictures by Max Schwartz. Harper 1928 79p illus (City and country ser) o.p. 1946 (5-7) 628.9

"A narrative of the development of light, from the days of the fire-fly lantern, through those of torches, candles, kerosene and gas down to modern days." Providence

Illustrated with drawings

* Young Lafayette; with illus. by David Hendrickson. Houghton 1932 253p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

"A biography of one of the most romantic and beloved figures in the history of our country. Historical accuracy and desire to make vivid the personality of the young Frenchman, combined with high ideals and a sense of adventure, make it a book of unusual merit." Wis. bul.

and of fourteen-year-old Jorley who had no love for the sea but a great longing to go out into the unknown world beyond

"Jorley O'Hagen, one of a family of men who have fished off Newfoundland time out of mind, was just at an age to begin his first season at the nets—and he hated fishing. How he laid aside his own plans to meet an emergency which arose, how he helped outwit a gang of fish-thieves and in the end realized his own ambitions, form the theme of this exciting and thoroughly convincing story of Newfoundland fishermen." "This book will answer about all the questions which a fascinated child can fire at weary and ignorant parents. . . It is illustrated with photographs which are not always so very distinct, but which give an effective impression of massive proportions." N.Y. Times

The author "writes her story of elephants with skill and authority. She tells of elephants in their natural habitat all over the world, explaining their behavior, their peculiar characteristics, their use to man, and man's treatment of them. . . The book is well illustrated by photographs from various sources." Library journal

"A little girl on her first trip away from home is the heroine. Her journey begins in Iowa, and ends on an island off the Massachusetts coast [where] she spends an exciting winter." Book rev. digest

"Lovely as the writing is, this is not a precious book. There is for Mab, a spirited and inquisitive and none too patient little girl, always something doing, whether it is exploring Mr. Bates's antique shop with the scores of stories about his curios, playing with the rambunctious Prior children or being lost on the snowy moors under the Northern lights, and the whole adds up, with its understanding of people as well as place, into a worthy successor to 'Thimble Summer.'" N.Y. Times

- * Then there were five; written and illus. by Elizabeth Enright. Rinehart 1944 241p illus $2 (5-8) Fic

Sequel to "Four-story mistake"

"The four Melendy children, Mona, Rush, Randy, and Oliver, still live in The Four Story Mistake and in this story have a fifth member—Mark Herron who has been left alone by the death of a cruel guardian. In modern idiom and with considerable verve, the children live thru a gay summer, marred only by the absence of their father, who has a war job in Washington." Book rev. digest for Garnet. It broke the drought, led Eric to the Linden family, was responsible for the adventure of Garnet and Citronella (being locked in the public library until midnight) and best of all, Timmy, the cod-liver-oil-fed pig won the blue ribbon at the Fair. A delightful story of life on a Wisconsin farm today, with Garnet depicted as a very real little girl; the black-and-white drawings and colored illustrations add to the charm of the book." Bkl.

Little magic horse; a Russian tale; tr. by T. B. Drowne and illus. by Vera Bock. Macmillan 1942 unp illus $2.50 (5-8) 398

"The Little Humpbacked Horse, written over a hundred years ago by Peter Ershoff, was a great favorite with Russian children. . . This translation is the first English translation in rhymed verse. The story reads along easily, and the distinguished illustrations in rose and blue by Vera Bock are a fascinating, droll interpretation of the text. The story is completely Russian: author, translator, illustrator, as well as its original folklore roots, and American children of all ages will enjoy it." Library journal

Story of a baby; illus. by the author. Viking 1939 63p illus $2.50 612.6

Through its use by the parent with the child, the information desired by small children about themselves and the expected brother or sister is scientifically, but simply enough related for reading to them. The illustrations in half-tones have been made by the author from the specimens of embryos collected by the Loyola University School of Medicine, and in addition are many pencil drawings of babies in all kinds of moods." "A series of connected fairy stories relating the adventures of Tom Tiddler, a little boy of old London, who attempted to free his playmates from the giant Gogmagog. The stories give whimsical explanations of the origins of some of London's streets and byways: Shepherd's Bush, Threadneedle street, Haymarket, Moorgate, Bayswater, Lavender Hill, Limehouse, Oxford Circus, and many others." Book rev. digest

Tales of Chaucer; the Canterbury tales done into prose; illus. by W. R. Flint. Hale 1930 245p illus o.p. 1946 $3 (7-9) 821

Analyzed in Eastman supplement
First published 1930 by Cape with title "Tales from Chaucer"

"Miss Farjeon states in her preface that her object in this rendering of the Canterbury tales was to present them for readers, especially young people, unable to cope with Chaucer in the original. All the tales are included but, having young readers in mind, she has in some cases changed and in others omitted certain incidents, while some of the longer tales have been much compressed. Chaucer's phrase has been used wherever possible. Twelve full-page illustrations in delightful color." Bkl.

550 "Dr. Fenton is a naturalist and a geologist and his book grew out of talks originally given to the young visitors at the museums of the Universities of Chicago and Cincinnati. Written in topical form, it presents a clear, orderly exposition of the formation of different types of rock, how they have grown, layer by layer, been bent, twisted, or eroded by natural forces until they form the earth's crust as we know it today. With this as a guide the beginner, unversed in geology, can yet read in some detail the story written in an old river bed, a glaciated field, a mountain of igneous rock, or a tropical coral reef." "Hitty, a doll of real character carved from a block of mountain ash, writes the story of her eventful life from the security of an antique-shop window which she shares with Theobald, a rather overbearing cat. Her career begun in a quiet Maine village, is crowded with adventures and she gives lively doll's-eye glimpses of the widely differing places and people that she encounters during her hundred years, and of the manners and modes of her times. The illustrations by Dorothy P. Lathrop are the happiest extension of the text. Will be enjoyed by both grown-ups and children." Cleveland

"The 'Kalevala' is here retold simply and with power and beauty. Baldwin's 'Sampo' is perhaps more scholarly, but this version will appeal to a wider circle of readers and thus accomplish the author's purpose of familiarizing boys and girls with the epic." Wis. bul.

This edition is less complete than Baldwin's, and is more simply written. Some children may find it more readable.

In some communities, there is some objection to the last of the stories from a religious standpoint

Cape Horn snorter; a story of the War of 1812, and of gallant days with Captain Porter of the U. S. frigate, Essex; illus. by Henry Pitz. Houghton 1939 263p illus $2 (7-8) Fic Washed overboard from a whaler off Cape Horn, Jim McRea landed at Tierra del Fuego, where he lived with the Indians until the frigate Essex came along. Then he started on an exciting journey, capturing British and Portuguese vessels during the War of 1812 and taking part in the battle of Valparaiso. Maps on lining-papers

"The main characters are convincing, and the story is full of exciting encounters and events, bringing out a side of the War of 1812 which is comparatively obscure." Library Journal

"An adventure story of a young English boy named Osborne who shipped with Magellan upon the first voyage around the world." Book rev. digest

"The descriptions of the sea, of storms, the feeling of the lack of knowledge in those brave days, the lack of food, the terror of some of the bleak, black nights is consistently felt by the reader because of the vigor with which the story is written. . . . It is a finely proportioned book." N.Y. Times

Dog at his heel; the story of Jock, an Australian sheep dog, and what befell him and his companions on a great drive; illus. by H. C. Pitz. Winston 1936 304p illus o.p. 1946 (6-8) Fic

"There is a sweep of great distances and the flavor of far-off and unfamiliar life in this story of Jock, a shepherd dog, and the men who were drawn together because of him. The scene shifts from Australia to South Africa and to Argentina, but the fine relationship of trust and understanding between master and dog never varies. Excellent format. Many illustration full of vigor and spirit. For readers of twelve and up." Bkl.

"Mr. Charles J. Finger has here transcribed legendary stories out of South America, based upon tales that he took down at first hand from the Indians he met in his wanderings. . . . There are nineteen tales in this book and all reflect the flavor of the lands of their origin. Mr. Finger's service in gathering them is a valuable one, and in the telling he remains a self-effacing troubadour, never diverting the interest of the reader from his story to himself." Books (N.Y. "The odyssey of a family of seven children who are left orphans in a year of famine. Taking with them their one possession, a thin but splendid goat, they wander away from the tumble-down cottage in the barren north in search of food and shelter farther south. The story records their eventful experiences and the happy outcome." Pittsburgh

Flack, Marjorie, 1897-

* Angus and the cat; told and pictured by Marjorie Flack. Doubleday 1931 (32)p illus $1 (1-2) E

"An amusing and attractive picture book continuing the story of Angus the Scotch terrier, who made his first appearance... in 'Angus and the Ducks.' Marjorie Flack's terriers are quite irresistible, and this simple little story... has an element of surprise and humor that 7 and 8 year olds thoroughly enjoy." N.Y. Times

* Angus and the ducks; told and pictured by Marjorie Flack. Doubleday 1930 (32)p illus $1 (1-2) E

* Ask Mr Bear. Macmillan 1932 (32)p illus $1.25 (1-2) E

"While 'Ask Mr Bear' has less distinction than the author's picture books about Angus, the Scots terrier, it will have a strong appeal to very young children because of its repetition, its use of the most familiar animals, its gay pictures and the cumulative effect of the story of the little boy who starts out to find a birthday present for his mother." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

New pet. Doubleday 1943 (32)p illus $1.50 (2-3) E

"More than anything else, Judy and Dick wanted a pet and when Mother brought home a baby brother who could neither walk nor talk they were dreadfully disappointed. But Baby Timothy soon made them understand that he was better than any kind of pet." Hunting Restless robin. Houghton 1937 (48)p illus $1.50 (1-3) E

"A charming story of the American robin told in text and pictures for younger children. In February... Mr. Robin sets out for the North... and finally comes to New Hampshire... The illustrations are lovely. Every detail is given the most careful attention, and one can fairly see the trees swelling and the buds bursting as the season progresses. Although the birds are named, there is no personification and all factual material is accurate." Library journal

Tim Tadpole and the great bullfrog. Doubleday 1934 (32)p illus $1 (2-3) E

"Following the advice of the big bullfrog, Tim the little tadpole began to swim and one day found he had legs and arms, was no longer a tadpole but Tim Frog. A delightful picture-book story." Ontario library review

* Wait for William; pictures by Marjorie Flack and R. A. Holberg. Houghton 1935 (33)p illus $1.25 (1-3) E

"How William, aged four, started out with his older brother and sister to see the circus parade, and because he was slower he got left behind. Then along came the circus parade and the man leading the elephant gave William a ride on the elephant's head." Book rev. digest

 "A jolly little story with a pleasant touch of humor, repetition that will make it easy reading for beginners, and delightful pictures, gay with color, in which we seem to see the circus move along before our eyes." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Rusty Pete of the Lazy AB; illus. by Doris Fogler. Macmillan 1929 106p illus $1.75 (4-6) Fic

"A story of ranch life for children of eight to ten. It is told simply with little plot, the horses, Rusty Pete, Chester, Nellie and her colt, playing as important a part in the story as do Mary Lou and her brother Alan, the owner of the ranch. The silhouette illustrations are particularly good, full of action and western atmosphere." Bkl.

"The author and her fourteen-year-old daughter spent over a year traveling by cargo boat, tramp steamer, or liner to the West Indies, thru the Panama canal, over to Tahiti and thru the South Seas. The book reflects their gay spirits along the way, and presents vivid pictures of the lands they visited and the people they encountered on their journey." Book rev.

Little history of the horn-book. Horn bk. 1942 57p illus $1.50 028.5

"This charming little book, designed and illustrated in delightful harmony with its text, contains an account of the development of the horn-book, the first lesson book for children in the English-speaking world, from which all subsequent growth has come. There is sound and scholarly knowledge here, presented with such spirit as to give the book appeal beyond the interest of teacher, student, or librarian. A list of sources is given, and the section 'Six centuries of the Horn-book in Prose and Poetry' is a small anthology of quotations, which pays varied tribute to the subject." N.Y. public lib.

"This book tells... the story of George Washington's life, of the people who were living when he did, both in America, and all over the world, of what they did when they were children, how later on the pattern of their lives fitted together, and what part each one played in that greatest of all adventure stories, the History of the World." page viii

"The book shows evidence of much research and thought. The illustrations are clever and descriptive, the style of writing and vocabulary clear... [There are] two indexes, one of people, and the other of places and events." Library journal

The 1940 edition has been revised in details and statistics to bring the material up to date, and new pictures have been added or substituted, but the material is basically the same as that of the 1927 edition, and the size and arrangement are the same

"An interesting book to read, although it looks like a text-book. Some of the chapters are: Something of Mexican history; The Mexican capital; City and country life in Mexico. It also has material on the Panama Canal and our relations with Nicaragua." Providence

Minor changes in the text of the 1928 edition were made in the 1937 edition.
In general, the text is the same

Similar in style and contents to other volumes of the series. With the author the reader is taken through the various South American countries. The author himself spent a little more than three years visiting these countries

(Riverside bookshelf) $2 (7-9) 92

Written between 1771 and 1788

"The style of this work is inimitable; it is as simple, direct and idiomatic as Bunyan's. It is the straightforward life-story of a typically American character endowed with great powers developed by self-education, who exerted vast influence as a citizen and statesman for his own day and for the future of his country."

"Each story is built around the interest in flying, how it started, how it was developed, training, point of view and experience, as well as the adventure of actual flights. There is a definite reason for the inclusion of each name,—men (and one woman) have been selected who made some contribution to the science and development of flying, in its various fields.

Some made speed or distance records, others inaugurated some forward step in one type of plane or another. Good reading, with enough anecdotal material to give it human coloring, and historical interest as well. Illustrated with photographs and maps." Kirkus

Lost baron; a story of England in the year 1200; with illus. by Andrew Wyeth. Houghton 1940 252p illus $2.25 (7-9) Fic

A castle in medieval Cornwall is the scene of this story of the page, Martin, who solved the mystery of the disappearance of the lord of the castle, and was instrumental in bringing back that same lord to his inheritance.

"It is a good picture of medieval life in castle and cottage, free of glamor. The hard lot of the peasant in the hands of a cruel or careless master is well shown, and history book facts about baronial economics become vivid reality." Library Journal

Red Keep; a story of Burgundy in the year 1165; illus. by N. C. Wyeth and Andrew Wyeth. Houghton 1938 309p illus $2.25 (7-9) Fic

"Young Conan of Prigny, while working on the ruined castle, known as the Red Keep, is able to hold it for the sole surviving D'Arcy, the young girl Anne." Book rev. digest

"This fast-moving romance of feudal days is set in the stronghold of a Burgundian lord. The author's wish is to portray the conflicts and difficulties of those restless times when the peasants, the guilds, the church and the state were constantly warring with one another. But he never allows this interest in social problems to hinder the swift pace of his story." Ontario library review

* Story of Grettir the Strong. Dutton 1908 268p illus $2 (6-8) 398.2

The translation by William Morris and Eiriker Magnusson entirely re-written

"The only good form of this saga for children's reading; . . . vigorous and interesting narrative." Bkl.

Story of Rolf and the viking's bow; with illus. in color by Henry Pitz. Little 1924 289p illus (Beacon hill bookshelf) o.p. 1946 (6-7) Fic

First published in 1904

"Inspired by and in some degree based on the Icelandic sagas. Courage, self-control, patriotism, perseverance, are the qualities developed in the young hero." N.Y. state lib.

French, Henry Willard, 1854-

* Lance of Kanana; a story of Arabia; illus. by Wilfred Jones. Lothrop 1932 165p illus $2 (6-8) Fic

"How the brave Bedouin boy, Kanana, gave his life to save the Arabians from the hand of their enemies." Pittsburgh

An excellent special edition, of a book first published in 1892 with large print and good paper. Illustrations are in black and white with four color plates

Other editions are:

"A colorful book illustrating and describing some 69 flowers, shrubs, and vines. An introduction gives brief general information about when and how they live, pollination, seed distribution, flower parts, and flower names. A few of the illustrations resemble those on seed packages and catalogs, but most of them are good. Vines and shrubs are pictured on alternate end papers." Bkl.

"Here we come a'piping. Book II"
 A collection of poetry for children selected chiefly from the work of English authors. Illustrated by Irene Mountfort

Eight little plays for children. Doubleday 1925 94p $1.25 (4-6) 822

Contents: Darby and Joan; Fairy riddle; Noughts and crosses; Weather clerk; Fairy and the doll; Cabbages and kings; In Arcady; Father Christmas
 "These eight short plays are rollicking good fun with all their delectable and gossamer fancy. Kings and queens and lord chamberlains; live dolls; piping shepherds and shepherdesses; Mother Carey herself; Father Christmas, and Darby and Joan are only a few of the quaint characters that cry out to be acted by youngsters of six to ten. No play is long enough to grow tedious and the lines are charmingly fresh and piquant, without a trace of grown-up patronage behind them." Sat. rev. of lit.

Fairies and friends. Doubleday 1926 64p front o.p. 1946 (4-5) 821

"This fourth volume of fairy poetry is presented in the three parts: 'Fairies,' 'Friends,' 'Other Poems.' The other volumes may be turned to for fairy poems but in this, the Friends—the Doctor, the Postman, the Grocer, Mr. Minnit, and Mrs. Barks—make the book distinctive." Right book for the right child

"A gay mixture of poetry, old and new, for the youngest readers. Most of the poems are short and many will be easily memorized by youthful readers or listeners." Wis. bul.

"There are a few riddles, a few nursery rhymes, bits about days and people and the country, winds and weather. . . Irene Mountfort's drawings have a simplicity to them which makes of every child one of the children she has lightly sketched. The book is a fine first step to the wide treasure house of children's poems." Horn book frogs, herons, raccoons and other muskrats, but particularly Old Muskrat, who taught him much of what a young muskrat should know. One day there came a flood, and Splasher and Old Muskrat found themselves launched on an adventure that took them far from their river bank

"The reader explores with interest the world of frogs and herons, king-fishers, turtles and racoons. . . . Else Bostelmann's drawings have both accuracy and charm."

"Ever since dust and drought had driven them out of northern Texas, the Larkins had traveled hither and yon wherever there were crops to be harvested. Now they had reached the cotton fields of the San Joaquin Valley in California and ten-year-old Janey wished intensely that when asked, 'How long are you going to stay,' she might answer, 'As long as we want to'." Her desire is finally fulfilled and Janey's most cherished possession, the blue willow plate, is brought forth from its wrappings to grace the mantelpiece of the first real home that the family has known in five long years. Here is an appealing story of courage and fortitude handled with dignity and considerable skill." Library Journal

Sarah's idea; illus. by Marjorie Torrey. Viking 1938 146p illus $1.50 (5-6) Fic

"A pleasant kindly family story for little girls of nine and ten, and one that gives some idea of the gathering and drying of prunes in California. Its chief merit lies in the delightful characterization of intense little Sarah . . . with a secret passion to be a tomboy and a cowgirl, and of pretty, casual Linda, her younger sister." * Sensible Kate; a story; illus. by Marjorie Torrey. Viking 1943 189p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

Being neither cute nor pretty, ten-year-old Kate, orphan and family helper, felt she'd better stick to being just sensible—and she was sensible. How Kate learns the meaning of nonsense and joy and that even a red-headed, freckled little girl is needed by someone, makes a heart-warming story." Bkl.

Trouble for Jerry; illus. by Marjorie Torrey. Viking 1944 179p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

"Ranch story introducing two characters from an earlier book by the author, 'Sarah's idea.' Sarah and her sister Linda come to spend the summer on the ranch, much to the disgust of Jerry, who doesn't like dudes, and girl dudes at that! There are humorous episodes, but too often the point of view strikes one as adult rather than juvenile." Wis. bul.

day when he took it off respectfully as the king passed down the street in his grand carriage. He snatched it off and another appeared, and another and another. The Hatmaker, the Grand Duke Wilfred, the wise men, and the magicians (and also their cats) were unable to solve the mystery of Bartholomew's hats

Gibson, Katharine, 1893-

Arrow fly home; illus. by Ralph Ray. Longmans 1945 146p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

A "tale of a boy raised by Indians, in frontier days in Ohio, before the Revolution. . . This is the story of David Gibson, captured at two, and living the life of a Shawnee until he was 18. . . When David was 11, a white girl, Elizabeth, was brought to camp, and inspired him to be something more than a good hunter, taught him to read and write, and brought to the surface yearnings that were in conflict with his loyalty to his Indian friends." Kirkus

"The narrative, loosely built, seems less a story than a kind of reconstructed memoir, based on the lives of the author's great great grandparents. The reader who runs will very likely prefer a more solid plot. But the sensitive reader of 11 and up will find that it stirs the imagination and the heart." N.Y. Times

Bow bells; this story is by Katharine Gibson; it is illus. by Vera Bock. Longmans 1943 124p illus $2 (4-6)

Fic
"The story of Dicoun Whittington's youth, of his apprenticeship to Sir Ivo Fitzwarren, a prominent merchant, and of Night Watch, the cat who brought him a fortune and opened the way to Dicoun's becoming thrice mayor of London Town." Hunting

"The old legend of Dick Whittington gains color and life in this entertaining version." Horn book

Cinders; with illus. by Vera Bock. Longmans 1939 132p illus $1.75 (4-5) Fic

"A whimsical story of what became of Cinderella's coachman (Cinders) when the fairy godmother forgot to turn him back again into a grey mouse. Being a good hand with horses, Cinders rode Flash, the king's horse, to warn his sovereign of the enemy, and as a reward became Cinderella's own coachman once more. A charming fantasy." Bkl

"Vera Bock's black and white illustrations [are] droll, fanciful, and extremely decorative." N.Y. Times

* Golden bird and other stories; introduction by C. B. Walker; illus. by E. G. Sommer. Macmillan 1927 163p illus $1.75 (5-8) 398.2

Analyzed in Eastman supplement

"Ten legends of Egypt, Greece, Persia, China and France, related in vivid, swift narrative and with a freshness and beauty that will attract girls and boys nearing their teens. Katharine Gibson first told the stories at the Cleveland Museum of Art." Cleveland

The stories are: Doomed prince; Princess and the moon god; Story of Paphos; Golden bird; Clown of god; Cathedral under the sea; Fair Jehane; Tale of King Coustans, the emperor; Sesshiu and the mouse; Story of the great bell of Peking

* Goldsmith of Florence; a book of great craftsmen; decorations by Kalman Kubinyi. Macmillan 1929 209p illus $3 (6-9) 709

"A series of stories about great craftsmen, growing out of the author's story hours at the Cleveland Museum of art. The Goldsmith of Florence is of course Cellini, and there are other stories of Donatello, Della Robbia, of the weavers of tapestries and illustrators of manuscripts, of our own Paul Revere, and of two craftworkers of today. Superbly illustrated." Wis. bul.

Jock's castle; Vera Bock illustrated it. Longmans 1940 139p illus $2 (4-5)

Fic
"Jock Howison and his dog Sniffer built themselves a mill near Afton Town. To his land came Tansy and Goody Mullins, the Tinker with his wife and eleven children, the Smith, his wife and the twins, and they all lived together in a goodly fellowship. When Jock rescued a hunter from ruffians he was summoned to court only to discover that the hunter was no other than Prince Henry himself. As a reward Jock was given an old castle with seven towers. . . . A whimsical story, chock full of delightful humor and characterization." Library journal

Nathaniel's witch; with pictures by Vera Bock. Longmans 1941 136p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

"Nathaniel Endicott, an eleven-year-old boy living near Salem in 1785, and his young uncle Martin, are under the domination of a greedy uncle. Nathaniel has the luck to meet a witch and by doing her a service, frees her from her bond." Book rev. digest

Oak tree house; with pictures by Vera Bock. Longmans 1936 127p illus $1.75 (3-4) Fic

"Life in England in the days of the boy king, Edward VI, forms the background of this story for young readers. It describes the trials of a Goodman and his dame who were forced to take refuge in a great oak tree, where they built a little house and lived with their dog and cat. And the young king stopped to see them on his way to Chester, and was delighted with the house." Book rev. digest

"Vera Bock's illustrations, executed with the broad good-humor of the story, seem an integral part of it." N.Y. Times

* Pictures to grow up with. Studio 1942 151p illus $3 (6-9) 759

Over 120 reproductions of famous paintings and art objects of many lands and ages, arranged under subjects: small and baby animals, fetes and amusements, gardens and flowers, legends and history, young people, fantasy, angels and madonnas. Each picture has a short descriptive text.

"The world of art is opened in the fresh presentation of pictures. . . . The simple text introduces to children the joy of participation that comes with looking at pictures." N.Y. public lib.

Katrina, by Maria Gleit [pseud]; illus. by Nedda Walker. Scribner 1945 239p illus $2.50 (7-9) Fic

"Author of 'Pierre keeps watch' has written a second story of a European country under Nazi rule. Young Katrina of Luxembourg, a village innkeeper's daughter, visits relatives in Luxembourg City and becomes a member of the underground movement. Story has dramatic action, atmosphere and romance, but it moves at a slower pace than the author's first book, and characters are not as convincingly portrayed." Library journal

Based on the story of a real horse, a strawberry roan, who insisted upon joining the U.S. Cavalry when Troop A was putting down an Indian rebellion in Arizona. He went with the troop to Manila, during the Spanish-American war, and caused confusion by his impetuous but tactless, bravery, and was discharged. He redeemed himself by revealing a hidden arsenal, and so became the hero of the day. Lively drawings in keeping with the text

"It is a readable book, containing interesting information, but too short to be of much value to the student. The best features of the book are the excellent photographic illustrations which appear on almost every other page, and the chapter entitled 'In the Gallery of Patriots,' which gives biographies of heroes famous in these countries. . . . Criticisms of the book are the lack of a good map—there is only one small one, to which the reader refers constantly—and the inaccuracy of the index. In spite of this, the book will be very useful . . . and contains some material not easily found elsewhere." Library journal

"Conveys information, both actual and comparative, about a multitude of things we are all interested in—surface, climate, vegetation, soils, economic resources, trade, means of communication, races, languages and religions. The author, himself a teacher of ripe experience, has seen to it that the symbols by which these maps express their meaning are made clear. In an admirable foreword he explains the use of color, the choice of projections, and the various scales used. A great virtue of these maps is their clearness. Detail has been subordinated to legibility." Literary

First published in 1908
"There have been many elaborate editions of this well loved book but this with its many tiny pictures . . . is the one that children will take to their hearts." Publishers' weekly

"The humor, intelligent absurdity, the kindly wisdom, and the poetry of this incomparable tale of Water Rat, Mole, Toad, Badger and other animals who lived along the river bank or in the forest, give it an ageless and universal appeal. A book for the child and adult to enjoy together." A. T. Eaton's Treasure for the taking

Another distinguished edition is published by Heritage for $3. Contains an introduction by A. A. Milne and illustrations by Arthur Rackham

* Hercules; the story of an old-fashioned fire engine; written and illus. by Hardie Gramatky. Putnam 1940 [72]p illus $2 (2-3) E

"A dramatic picture storybook in brilliant colors in which the old horse-drawn fire engine becomes a hero and saves the City Hall. Children will delight in the gusto and fun." N.Y. public lib.

* Little Toot; pictures by Hardie Gramatky. Putnam 1939 93p illus $1.75 (2-3) E

Story and pictures describe the early career of a saucy little tug-boat too pleased with himself to do any real work until one day when he found himself out on the ocean in a storm. Then Little Toot earned the right to be called a hero

"Mr. Gramatky tells his story with humor and enjoyment, giving too, a genuine sense of the water front in both pictures and story. For small boys and their fathers who love the bustle and stir of a harbor and for all others who rejoice in fresh ideas in children's books." Horn book

* Loopy; written and illus. by Hardie Gramatky. Putnam 1941 [72]p illus $2.25 (1-3) E

Loopy is a little airplane who helps the pilot teach flying. Almost every day he is maltreated by the students who use him while trying to learn to fly, but Loopy's stubby little fuselage contains a stout heart, and in the end he proves himself the equal of the biggest strato-liner

* Adam of the road; illus. by Robert Law-son. Viking 1942 317p illus $2 (6-9) Fic

Awarded the Newbery medal 1943

A "story of 13th century England about a minstrel boy who loses both his father and his dog and who sets out along the great highways to find them." Hunting "This spirited story of a very real boy has many dimensions, stretching as it does across Medieval England, populated with all classes and types of men and women. It is a distinguished book of absorbing interest." N.Y. public lib. Map on lining-papers

* Beppy Marlowe of Charles Town; with illus. by Loren Barton. Viking 1936 281p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"When Beppy Marlowe sailed in to the harbour of Charles Town on the good ship Industry in 1715, she was amazed to find there a flourishing self-sufficient city, with its own society, its little aristocracy, and beautiful gardens which rivaled those at home in England. But always Beppy and her brother wanted to go home to England. What happens when the return journey is made possible, makes an exciting climax to a charmingly told story for older boys and girls." In Becker, M. L. ed. Growing up with America p327-30 (6-9) S C

* Fair adventure; illus. by A. K. Reischer. Viking 1940 298p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"A story of today with a modern and very lovable heroine. As our story opens Page MacNeil, the youngest of the five young MacNeils, is just graduating from high school. . . Her great desire is to attend a distant college, but to do this she must win a scholarship. She tries and fails. It looks hopeless until, at the end of the summer, the sun shines brightly upon her most important event." Library journal

* Jane Hope. Viking 1933 276p front $2.50 (7-9) Fic

"Jane Hope was twelve when her mother, a widow, returned with her children to live in her father's home in Carolina, and so it was that Jane Hope grew up in Chapel Hill and was a part of the life centering around that staunch university of the South. The story recreates the period just preceding the Civil War and because of its romance will be particularly appealing to older girls." Bkl.

Meggy MacIntosh; illus. by Marguerite de Angeli. Viking 1930 274p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

First published 1930 by Doubleday

"How a brave Scotch girl of fifteen ran away from Edinburgh and sailed to America in the year 1775. It was her intention to join the rescuer of Bonnie Prince Charlie, Flora MacDonald, who then lived in North Carolina. After many months Meggy had her wish, and lived for a time with her heroine, but when a chance came to help someone who had once been kind to her she went back to Wilmington. There romance overtook her and her wanderings came to a happy end." Book rev. digest

"Quite aside from its merits as a book of brave adventure it is valuable for Colonial history, giving a vivid picture of the Scottish emigrants who settled in the Carolinas before the Revolution." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Merediths' Ann; an out-of-doors story for girls; illus. by G. B. Cutts. Doubleday 1927 267p illus (Young moderns ser) $1 (6-8) Fic

"A summer vacation with fun and excitement and the unraveling of a mystery in the mountains of New England." St Louis

* Penn; illus. by G. G. Whitney. Viking 1938 298p illus $2.50 (6-9) 92

A biography for young people of the man who renounced wealth and position to become a Quaker, and who became governor and proprietor of the new colony of Pennsylvania

"William Penn becomes a living man in this absorbing biography for older boys and girls." N.Y. public lib.

* Sandy; front. by Robert Hallock. Viking 1945 233p front $2 (7-9) Fic

Sandy at 17, has just finished her freshman year at college. She is restless in the small, exclusive summer resort near Boston, so she takes a job as waitress at the Windrush Inn. She has adventures, falls in love and ultimately resolves her restlessness by deciding to give up college and join UNRRA

"A story that girls will read with satisfaction and fellow-feeling." N.Y. Times

* Young Walter Scott; end papers by Kate Seredy. Viking 1935 239p illus $2 (7-9) 92

"The unfolding of Scott's genius against the background of his school and family life in Edinburgh. The style is clear and vigorous with a fast-moving narrative that reads like fiction. Fine feeling for the people and the period, a sensitive understanding of this growing boy whose determination to develop normally in spite of his lameness made him a leader in sports among his contemporaries, and an appreciation of the awakening of his imagination and intellect distinguish this extraordinary biography for boys and girls." "A story for boys of the life of the well-known photographer of African wild life.
Martin Johnson's taste for travel had an early stimulus in his voyage with Jack London in the Snark. Since then his wanderings have been fairly continuous.
Mr Green makes of them, and particularly of Mr Johnson's work in Africa, an interesting narrative." Book rev. digest of the book is devoted to his expeditions to China and the neighboring deserts in search of relics of ancient man. Naturally the greater space is devoted to adventures, but along with this there is much scientific information." Sat. rev. of lit.

Billy Butter. Macmillan 1936 92p illus
$2 (4-5) Fic

"The background of this realistic story of a lively goat who is the playmate of a family of Italian children is Telegraph Hill, San Francisco, twenty-five years ago. The many pictures reproduced from water color paintings give children true impressions of the region." N.Y. public lib.

* Cock-a-doodle doo; the story of a little red rooster. Macmillan 1939 156p illus $2 (2-3) E

"Little Red was a baby chick, hatched out with a brood of ducklings, but he found his ways and instincts foreign to theirs.
A lively, satisfying picture book of Little Red's adventures in crossing the wood to reach the haven of the farmyard beyond the hill. The illustrations are reminiscent of those in 'The farmer in the dell', full of humor and animation; they are realistic and artistic, some in colors, others in black and white. Picture book age, grades 2-3. Large type." Bkl.

Cricket; the story of a little circus pony told and pictured by Berta and Elmer Hader. Macmillan 1938 160p illus $2
(4-6) Fic

"Cricket is a most versatile pony, whether as the circus performer and particular friend of Mom the elephant, or as the 'world's champion bucking pony,' when he appears in the theatre as a footlight favorite. After further experiences he finds himself on a farm, where he finally retires from professional life, although not entirely, since he became a great drawing card in the children's barnyard circus." Wis.
bul.

Farmer in the dell. Macmillan 1931 90p illus $2.50 (1-4) E

"About the farmer, his family and all the animals that live on the farm and what they do each season of the year. A gay picture book which will help to interpret American country life to the city child."
Cleveland

Green and gold; the story of the banana.
Macmillan 1936 48p illus $1.50 (4-6) 634.7

"A picture story book that tells of the propagation of the banana through the centuries, its cultivation, and marketing.
Pictures in lovely color on every page convey some sense of tropical life and foreign scene. Because of the interest in its subject matter, this will be useful with a wide range of elementary grades." Bkl.

* Jamaica Johnny. Macmillan 1935 90p
illus $2.50 (4-5) Fic

"An interesting story about a little Negro boy of Jamaica, which reflects the foreign scene and life. He lived with his Uncle Solomon and helped him take care of his small farm in the mountains. He was a good worker, but he did not like to go to school, and this story, among other things, tells what made him change his mind." Bkl.

"Colorful, vivid pictures . . . expressive of tropical sunshine and purple shadows, and peopled by the jolly looking black folk who work on the banana plantations." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Little stone house; a story of building a house in the country. Macmillan 1944 163p illus $2 (1-3) E

"Mr. and Mrs. Doe and Dottie and Bobby wanted a house in the country and decided to build it themselves. It was hard work but they learned a great deal about laying foundations, hoisting rafters, putting on the roof, and everything else which is a part of building construction." Hunt-ting

"Refreshingly casual picturization of the adventures of building a house." Kirkus

Little town. Macmillan 1941 187p illus
$2 (1-3) E

Demonstrates "the many daily service activities of any town, milk delivery, fire and police departments, schools and stores and how they work." American news of Midget and Bridget. Macmillan 1934 90p

illus $2 (4-5) Fic

A story about two little gray burros of the Southwest who go to places far apart, but finally come together again on the desert

"The story is alive with human interest, and is told with the simplicity natural to those who know the habits and peculiarities of animals." Sat. rev. of lit.

Mighty hunter. Macmillan 1943 149p
illus $2 (2-3) E

"A tale about a brave little Indian boy who wanted to be a hunter but decided after he met a hungry bear that he had better go on to school." Library journal

* Rainbow's end. Macmillan 1945 168p
illus $2 (4-6) Fic

A ship's carpenter who escapes death in a storm at sea settles down in Snug Harbor with his cat. "How the carpenter and the cat endeavor themselves to the whole little fishing hamlet and how the hamlet shows its collective gratitude completes the story." Kirkus

"A story that is warm with humor and with the natural 'give and take' of natural, kindly people. The scent of apple blossoms is in it and the strong salty smell of the sea. The pictures are in black and white and in color. It is an attractive looking book." Sat. rev. of lit.

* Spunky. Macmillan 1933 90p illus $2 (4-6) Fic

"Spunky is a little Shetland pony who retains his spirit throughout life; in a coal mine, in the circus and as a park pony." Providence

Hader, B. H. and Hader, E.—Continued
 "In 'Spunky' Berta and Elmer Hader have written and illustrated a book that will live long and be greatly loved by children. Pictorially the book is the best work the Haders have done and the pictures reinforce the text with a unity uncommon in a book of the kind." A. C. Moore in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

This is an edition with good illustrations and in attractive format

A series of twenty-two stories about the irresponsible Peterkin family who try to achieve wisdom, thereby getting into strange difficulties from which they are saved by the common sense of the Lady from Philadelphia. One of the really humorous books for children, it has been popular ever since the stories appeared in "St Nicholas" July 1874-October 1879. Published in book form in 1880

Followed by "Last of the Peterkins"

Big book of boys' hobbies; new things to make and new things to do; with eight hundred illus. and working drawings by the author. Lothrop 1929 xxvi, 467p illus o.p. 1946 (6-8) 790

"There are four divisions, one for each season of the year. Includes suggestions for the organization of a hobby club, as well as for individual hobbies. Several chapters are devoted to model aeroplanes and sailing-ship models." Pittsburgh

Craft work-and-play things; a handy book for beginners; with over three hundred photographs and working drawings by the author. Lippincott 1936 246p illus $2.50 (5-8) 680

"A book for beginners and the programme outlined is one of balanced work and play. Uses of simple tools are explained, and the objects to be made are scaled carefully to a child's observed progress in the use of tools." Ontario library review

Home handicraft for boys; learning through doing; with over four hundred photographs and working drawings by the author. Lippincott 1935 292p illus $2.50 (7-9) 680

First published in 1923 by Doubleday "This edition . . . substitutes new material for chapters 12, 19, 20, and 21, and adds a final additional chapter. The new chapters deal with garden gadgets, a model airplane laboratory, flying model airplanes, scale model airplanes, and scientific stunts." Bkl.

Home-made games and game equipment; with over five hundred illus. and working drawings by the author and Norman Hall. Lothrop 1923 xx, 394p illus $2.50 (5-8) 790

"Both indoor and outdoor games are included and there are directions for making the necessary equipment as well as instructions for playing the games." Pittsburgh

Outdoor boy craftsmen; at home, in field and woods and in and on water; with over six hundred illus. and working drawings by the author. Lothrop 1925 xx, 429p illus $2.50 (6-8) 796

"Directions for making equipment for outdoor activities. Boy scouts will be especially interested in the ten chapters on camping, and in the descriptions of trek carts and kits for hiking and bicycle trips." Pittsburgh

Outdoor handicraft for boys; practical projects for all the year; with over four hundred photographs and working drawings by the author. Lippincott 1938 xx, 289p illus $2.50 (7-9) 680

"Simple, clear directions, with many accompanying diagrams, show how to make an outdoor gymnasium, a bird shelter, a bird bath, a skiboard, an aquaplane, an outdoor fireplace, a tree hut, an ice hut, and many other items. Covers a wide range and, like Mr. Hall's other books, offers much of value." Bkl.

"An excellent book for summer-camp libraries and instructors and for boys who like to tinker by themselves. . . Good, clear, workmanlike drawings and directions." Horn book

* Nansen; illus. by Boris Artzybasheff. Viking 1940 165p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92 Life of Fridtjof Nansen, Arctic explorer and winner of the Nobel Peace prize, written particularly for young people

"The great scientist, explorer and statesman, Nansen, is brought before the reader as a fearless idealist, actuated by that 'something within him that urged him always to use all the powers he had, and to use them worthily.' Particularly challenging is this biography at the present time in its account of Nansen's last quest, that of trying to find a road to peace among the nations. Artzybasheff's clear blue illustrations are in perfect harmony with the stillness and the great beauty of the snow and ice fields." Wis. bul.

Hall, Charles Gilbert, 1866-

* Mail comes through. Macmillan 1938 135p illus $1.75 (6-8) 383

383 "An account of the development of mail service from very early times, and in various parts of the world, but with special emphasis on the United States system. A good index, photographs and old prints increase the value of the book." Wis. bul.

Through by rail. Macmillan 1938 152p illus $1.75 (6-9) 385

"An account of the development of railways, showing the incentives which drove the inventors forward." Ontario library review

"Will be exceedingly useful for reference in schools and libraries and . . . will also be read for pleasure by many young people from 10 to 14. The style is lively and interesting and the author never descends to his readers." N.Y. Times

"Holly Daggett, an expert horsewoman, helped pay her way through college by teaching her collegemates to ride. Their riding brought them several exciting experiences. Natural, jolly girls and normal college life make this a thoroughly good yarn." Bookshelf for boys and girls

Here-to-yonder girl; illus. by Willard Bonte. Macmillan 285p illus (Young people's lib.) $1.75 (7-9) Fic

First published 1932

"Tassie Tyler is the heroine of this well told story of mountain folk in one of the sequestered regions of Kentucky. While particularly successful in revealing the people's primitive life and their heritage of song and music, superstition, and ancient customs, the plot is one essentially interesting to children, especially to girls over twelve." "Mrs Hamsun writes with zest and with a humor that makes us feel that she is without doubt the very understanding mother of the story. The children are undeniably real and as different in character and disposition as they are lively and entertaining. They are droll and honest and unexpected. There is a delightful outdoor atmosphere and a feeling as one reads of living through the different seasons with these boys and girls. A book that both grownups and children will enjoy. The illustrations have charm and individuality and catch the spirit of the text." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times Reprint of a book first published in 1886 and formerly carried by Houghton. It has been out of print for many years

"This is a story of four charming children and a romantic doll—Polly, aged nine, who is the leading mind; Wan Lee, who is the most Oriental of any Chinese child I have met in books; a counterfoil in Hickory the Boy Pirate, and a tertium quid in Patsey, the other boy. . . It has . . . all the qualities which make stories attractive to children—outdoor life, children running away, a mine in the side of a mountain, distinct character bits in each one of the children described, and yet there is something else, too, some appeal that is by no means common." [She] tells the undramatic events of that life—the teaching, writing, surveying, and intense nature study—and gives an adequate picture of the man. However, possibly because the nature of the man is less appealing, this book fails to have the force of her previous biographies. Poet of Craigie house; the story of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow; illus. by W. M. Berger. Appleton-Century 1936 238p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

"Presents the poet in relation to his times and the circle of friends that surrounded him, including his travels in Europe, where Washington Irving helped to make his sojourn in Spain an enchanted period, his lectures at Bowdoin College when only 22, his happy married life, and many minor portraits. Much of interest is given about the writing of his poems." Ontario library review

* Romantic rebel; the story of Nathaniel Hawthorne; illus. by W. M. Berger. Appleton-Century 1932 231p illus $3 (8-9) 92

"Nathaniel Hawthorne is the subject of this story-biography for young readers. With delicacy and charm the author has described the life of her talented grandfather, dwelling upon the years of his childhood and youth, and omitting any critical judgment of his writings." Book rev. digest

"A dignified and readable biography of a man with a sufficient touch of romance both in his character and in the circumstances of his life to appeal to young readers. . . . Once begun there is little likelihood that the book will be left unfinished, for it is entertaining as a story." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Hildegard Hawthorne's "Lone rider; illus. by R. H. Rodgers" (Longmans 1933 264p illus $2.25) is a sequel, telling of further adventures of Ben Reynolds as a pioneer in the Pony Express, and a scout for Carson during the Civil war

Youth's captain; the story of Ralph Waldo Emerson; illus. by W. M. Berger. Longmans 1935 205p illus $2.25 (7-9) 92

"In simple and interesting style, the life and personality of a great man is presented. Special emphasis is laid on his personal charm and influence on those about him." Wis. bul.

"The delicate charm of this delightfully intimate biography is equalled by its value as a literary achievement. It is evident that for Miss Hawthorne it has not been a task of re-creating the background for her characterization; she has written simply and beautifully of the atmosphere which she has known and loved, and doubtless lived in." Springfield Republican

Hawthorne, Hildegard, and Mills, Esther (Burnell)

Enos Mills of the Rockies. Houghton 1935 260p illus $2.50 (7-9) 92

"A highly laudatory biography of the pioneer Rocky Mountain guide, writer, and speaker who dedicated his life to educating people to preserve the forests and wild natural beauty of that region as parks and places of recreation for all. While the inclusion of excerpts from his writings and references to his books give authenticity, they also slow up the reading." Library journal

Biographical stories include Benjamin West, Isaac Newton, Samuel Johnson, Oliver Cromwell, Benjamin Franklin, and Queen Christina of Sweden

"While ostensibly relating the adventures of a chair, he has endeavored to keep a distinct and unbroken thread of authentic history. . . . The author, it is true, has sometimes assumed the license of filling up the outline of history with details for which he has none but imaginative authority, but which . . . do not violate nor give a false coloring to the truth." Two and two are four; written and illus. by Carolyn Haywood. Harcourt 1940 171p illus $2 (2-4) E

"Two children come from a city apartment to live on a farm and two children come from Washington to visit their grandfather, the farmer. Four lively youngsters, two boys and two girls, around six years of age, make this story suitable for little girls and boys of five to eight years. Very like "B" is for Betsy" in makeup, but it will appeal to boys as well as girls. The large print will make it possible for the third graders to read it themselves." Library Journal

Anniversaries and holidays; a calendar of days and how to observe them. 2d ed completely rev with the editorial assistance of J. K. Sollenberger A.L.A. 1944 316p $6 394 Bibl.

First published 1928. In the new edition about 500 names of famous people have been added, the list of collected biographies has been doubled and the groups of occupations have been increased by 24 new categories

Part 1 lists day by day the holidays, important events, and birthdays of notable people and refers by code number to books about holidays and special days listed in part 2 and to books about persons listed in part 3. Part 4 is an index classified by occupations

"Consists first, of a Calendar in which holidays, birthdays of famous people, important events, feast days, etc. are noted, with references, notes and suggestions for observance; then of Bibliographies, listing the books that have been analyzed, material on programs and program making, and finally of indexes that make the wealth of material readily accessible. Major holidays are treated at length. To Christmas, for instance, are allotted twenty of the double-column pages. The whole has been carefully edited and printed." Wis. bul.

Ring of the Nibelung; illus. by Gustaf Tenggren. Knopf 1932 217p illus $2 (6-8) 782

"The story of the Nibelungs in the form used by Wagner, retold in a fashion that makes a connected and easily followed story of the 'Ring' operas. In itself the book is not particularly pleasing, for the style, though often colloquial, is heavy-footed, and lacks the simple dignity of the old stories in their original form. 'The Ring of the Nibelungs' will be chiefly useful to young people as a preparation for the operas. There are many illustrations in color and in black and white." A. T. Eaton in N.Y. Times

Christmas in Provence

Saintons go to Bethlehem; songs and illus. by Helen Hill and Violet Maxwell; music adapted from old Provençal folk songs with accompaniments by Lois Hutton. Macmillan 1935 58p illus music $2 (3-6) 783

"The foreword describes how the peasants of a Provençal village celebrate Christmas with the building of crèches and the placing of the pottery figures, or 'saintons,' which represent not only the Holy Family, the Shepherds, Angels, and Wise Men, but also the familiar characters of the village, such as the fishwife and the baker. The songs that follow, set to music adapted from old Provençal tunes, are delightful, and easy to play and to sing. Taken in sequence, they tell the Christmas story as it is known in Provence." New Yorker

"The colored illustrations of the saintons should be of assistance in costume designing, and the full-page illustrations offer suggestions for scenic backgrounds." Springfield Republican

"To note the variations in the illustrations of this classic from those in the original edition down to the present day is a study in itself. One of the charms of the Mark Twain volume is the fact that the illustrator has made his drawings after those in the first printing. As is the case with all popular children's books, the first edition has practically disappeared; only four copies are known to be in existence, and it was from one of these, borrowed from the library in Frankfurt-am-Main, that Fritz Kredel made his drawings. 'Slovenly Peter' is an admirable example of fine printing and book making." N.Y. Times

Adventures of Monkey; adapted from the translation made from the Chinese of Wu Ch'eng-en by Arthur Waley; illus. by Kurt Wiese. Day 1944 143p illus $1.75 (7-9) Fic

The text of this book consists of the first seven chapters of Arthur Waley's translation of Hsi yu chi, a traditional Chinese tale. These chapters form the section which has most appealed to the children of China

"'Monkey' is simply a book of good humor, profound nonsense, good-natured satire, and delightful entertainment. It has delighted millions of Chinese children and adults for over three hundred years." Introduction

"Much more of this traditional Chinese tale about the king of monkeys, who knew 72 magic transformations, is included here than in 'Magic monkey' by [Christina] Chan. Humorous black-and-white illustrations." Bkl.

A good deal of this material is not readily found elsewhere

"A book that teachers and others who are using poetry with very young children will find extremely useful. It contains a large number of poems which it has been found by experience are actually enjoyed by children from 4 to 9. The compilers have necessarily and wisely included many examples of rhymes and jingles, as well as real poetry. They have been very successful in collecting poems and verses that fit in with children's early experiences and have added to the anthology an Index to Interest which will be helpful to teachers." A. This story of the noble Cuchulain, the Hound of Ulster, was gathered from many different sources and re-written in a form interesting to older boys and girls. One of the best of the hero stories

"The book also includes the story of Deirdre in which Cuchulain has no part, and The Death of Usna's Sons, one of three mythical stories considered the loveliest in Irish literature." B. E. Mahony

"A sequel to 'The far distant Oxus' the book has the charm of the first one. . .
This time the Oxus is revisited, Exmoor meadows, lakes and hills are all named out of Sohrab and Rustum and the adventure in Persia is started with mysterious Maurice whose identity is almost revealed." Wis. bul.

"The delightful adventures of a party of English girls and boys and their ponies during a summer holiday on Exmoor. Written by two school girls with gusto, keenness of characterization and rare feeling for language. Has a special appeal to girls in the early teens." N.Y. public lib.

Secondly, it is a source book of folk games, contests, relays, and stunts. The activities are classified according to country, age, strenuousness, intellectual appeal, and adaptability to playing area. [Bibliography]; Preface

A book for adults to use with children rather than for the children themselves

Hunt, Walter Bernard, 1888-

Ben Hunt's Whittling book. Bruce pub. 1944 111p illus $2.50 (6-9) 736

"Instructions for 30 whittling projects including figures, jewelry, paperweights, bookends, wall decorations, and chessmen. Suggestions on selecting a pocketknife or other small knife and suitable materials." Bkl.

* Indian and camp handicraft. Bruce pub. 1938 80p illus $2 (6-9) 680

"This book presents thirty projects which, it is hoped, will interest both young and old. The projects have been developed especially for scoutmasters, camp leaders, and school-club sponsors who desire to give their boys work that arouses interest and the desire to achieve. Each one of the projects presented has been carefully made before the step-by-step directions were worded, and the illustrations made." Preface

Includes instructions for making Indian dolls, peace pipes, tom-toms, bow and arrows, gourd rattles, beadwork, snowshoes, wigwams, and so on Indiancraft. Bruce pub. 1942 124p illus $2.75 (6-9) 680

"Contains easy step-by-step directions for making more than forty-five articles of Indian craft. Includes things which have time-tested fascination as well as some unusual objects such as the Sioux ghost shirt; Headdresses; The love flute; The throwing arrows; A different method on tanning, and a chapter on whittling. Clear working drawings." Ontario library review

Frogs and toads; Caterpillars; Butterflies; Dragonfly nymphs; Dragonflies. Several photographs are given for each subject, and brief descriptive text

"This attractive nature book for small children is, as its title indicates, an invitation to go outdoors and see what can be learned by watching the little creatures which are to be found almost everywhere... The text is clear and the sentence structure of the simplest." Library journal

* Let's go to the seashore; illus. with photographs by the author. Doubleday 1941 88p illus $2 (2-5) 591.92

"Information about the more common sea creatures presented for young children through clear photographs and simple text. The facts are accurate and interesting, embellished with full page photographic illustrations which are remarkable for their fascinating detail. Like the author's previous book, 'Let's go out doors', this book will be useful with pre-school children and for the eight- and nine-year-old's own reading." Library journal

* Tune up; the instruments of the orchestra and their players; illus. with photographs by the author; foreword by Ernest La Prade. Doubleday 1942 unp illus $2 (5-8) 785

"The author describes each instrument: its origin, its construction, and its place in the symphony orchestra. The chapters are divided into the various types of instruments: Percussion, Woodwind, Brass and String." Huntington

"In simple, concise text and large, clear photographs, the author describes the instruments of the orchestra... Instruments are shown in the hands of the performers, and for this reason the whole instrument does not always appear. End papers give the usual seating arrangement for the symphony orchestra." Bkl.

Explains in text and picture suitable for five to seven-year-olds just what makes the railroad engine work, what a round-house is, how an engine fuels and takes on water, answers signals, and other matters of interest to small boys. Information given in fiction form and the engine has power to think and feel

Wreck of the Wild Wave; being the true account of the wreck of the clipper ship Wild Wave of Boston; pictures by F. T. Chapman. Oxford 1942 247p illus $2.50 (6-8) 910

"Captain Knowles [commander of 'The Wild Wave'], sailed from San Francisco in 1853, hoping to reach his home by the end of the year. Shipwreck on a small island, the successful attempt of the Captain and six others to reach Pitcairn Island, and other subsequent experiences make an exciting story of the sea." Huntington

"These shipwreck adventures have an authentic ring which cannot be questioned... The tragic situation of a ship pounded by the sea in the old sailing ship days stands out clearly in this true record of an American mariner." Horn book

Contents: Last of the flower parade; Birds of prey; Plants begin their travels; Some berries and other fleshy fruits; Plant life prepares for winter; Animal life prepares for winter

The author "shows basic principles by which one recognizes clues to identification, whether of flowers or trees or birds. . . He brings together what he wants to tell about Autumn and nature's changes, under the headings of flowers, birds of prey, plant travels, preparations for winter's onset. Under this final classification comes fascinating information about what happens to annuals, biennials, perennials, bulb and corn plants, evergreens and deciduous trees, animals that hibernate and animals that migrate. . . Good illustrations make this a field guide as well as a book for fireside reading." Kirkus

Some libraries may prefer to class this in 817

"The editing has been simply the deletion of several thousand words to make easy reading for those unfamiliar with the work. 'There has been no rewriting or intrusion of editorial comment.' The text is from the author's final revision in 1828... Both editor and illustrator have done their work well. With Daugherty remains the glory for the inception of this volume, but Miss Moore has excised the original with taste and discretion, and yet without losing one atom of its best flavor." W. R. One of the most useful and popular collections

"As outstanding as the best collections of fairy tales of any country, are those of the folk-lore of the British Isles made by Joseph Jacobs. In his re-writing of the stories, he has preserved their humour and dramatic power, and while simplifying dialect, has retained its full flavour. He intends his stories to be read aloud, and while children enjoy them for their own

"This tale, as I have told it, has been of the childhood and growing up days of the four Brontë geniuses. . . . It is an attempt to delve back through the few incidents known of them then into the years when they were free upon the Moor. . . . As far as possible I have tried to follow strictly the chronological order of events as they took place in the lives of this remarkable family, during the years 1825 to 1830. The other characters introduced in this book really lived also." An afterword

The 1935 edition is analyzed in Eastman supplement

"The selection of children's literature in this edition remains almost identical with that of the school edition. . . This volume is made more attractive by the 15 full-page illustrations in color, striking end papers, and a blue buckram cover. A pronouncing glossary has been added; the bibliographies, in some instances, extended." Ekl.

"Here is an anthology that stands out because of the high quality of its selection and its intelligent editing and arrangement. Carlo, the hound who thought he was a calf; written and illus. by M. S. Johnson and H. L. Johnson. Harcourt 1941 86p illus $1.75 (2-4) E

"The simplicity of this story and the nice big print will recommend it to [second and third grade children]. The tale itself is slight. It tells of a fox hound puppy that could not fit into his proper place on the farm. The only place he really felt at home was with Dolly, the calf. The other animals were not at all friendly until he was able to perform a real service for Mr. Russell, the farmer. After that, Carlo was given the proper respect due a good farm dog." "In the introduction the author explains her love for Bohemian things and Bohemian ways and Bohemian people. And in a slight, beautifully made, beautifully illustrated book, she has given a sensitive, gay interpretation of those things, ways, and people.

The lives of three happy children—Nanka, Marianka, and Hozlichek—are described as they play, laugh, and dance and sing in their home in this country. . . The book could be used most successfully read aloud to a single child or to small group." Li-

Honey Jane; illus. by Charles Smith.

Doubleday 1935 202p illus $2 (5-7) Fic

"Early in this story of present-day life in Kentucky. Honey Jane goes from her home in Millerville over the mountain to visit her granny and her other relatives, the 'wild McCreary's.' Her father, a circuit rider, has heard rumors of the awakening of an old feud and finds a way to end it. In this, as well as in many other interesting happenings, twelve-year-old Honey Jane takes part." Bkl.

House in No-End hollow; illus. by Erick Berry [pseud]. Doubleday 1938 286p illus $2 (7-9) Fic

"The story of Becky, a fifteen-year-old girl in the Tennessee Mountains who is determined to take care of her Grandmother and two younger children and to study herself at home. The story tells how a new teacher finds a way to make Becky's skill in handwriting pay her way at school and give the other children a chance to learn to make things—the beginning of mountain industries, weaving, carving, pottery." Horn book

Mr Songcatcher and company; illus. by Howard Simon. Doubleday 1940 237p illus $1 (5-8) Fic

"Both the story and the appealing pictures of the artist recreate life in the Tennessee mountains. 'Mr. Songcatcher' is the name given Dave Hunter, who is going through the mountains hunting up old songs and ballads. Joe Purdy, a mountain boy, thinks it would be a great experience to go with him, and so together they have this adventure. Although there is no plot, there are the folkways, games and singing, which bring the reader closer to the remote mountain places and to these little-known Americans." Wis. bul.

Peter Pocket's book; including Peter Pocket and Peter Pocket's luck; illus. by Mabel Pugh. Doubleday 1934 2v in 1 illus o.p. 1946 (4-5) Fic

This includes "Peter Pocket" (1927) and "Peter Pocket's luck" (1930) in one volume. Everyday events in the life of a little boy in the Cumberland mountains who goes to the mission school. Slightly sweet and sentimental but good for story interest and local color

Kanguk; a boy of Bering strait, as told to William Albee; illus. with Eskimo drawings by Kanguk, himself. Little 1939 116p illus o.p. 1946 (4-6) 919.8

"These stories, told to the author by an old Eskimo, once a mighty chieftain of his tribe, describe exactly the life of the Bering Strait Eskimo when Kanguk was a boy. Most exciting are his stories of fishing and hunting for seal, whale, walrus and bear. He also tells of the daily life and customs in the Eskimo village. Unusual illustrations by Kanguk." Hunting
